Farm Board Denies Aid to State Tobacco Growers

PRICES REMAIN BELOW AVERAGE OF 1929 SEASON

Failure of Farmers To Organize Co-Op Groups Cited in Answer to Appeal by Lankford.

CONDITION CHAOTIC THROUGHOUT BELT

MACON, Ga., July 30.—(AP)—Tobacco growers throughout the belt were rising up today with protests against the low price being offered for this year's crop. They were appealing to congressmen and United States senators to find some way to improve the situation.

Meantime Representative W. C. Lankford, of the eleventh congressional district, who watched the opening sales at Waycross yesterday, took the matter in his own hands and appealed to the federal farm board.

In response to a second telegram today he was told that there was nothing that that board could do at this time.

South Georgia's 22 markets were all doing business again during the day, but prices were only slightly better than yesterday and still from 6 to 8 cents under the opening day's record for last season, according to telegraphic reports received here.

Growers insist that the prices offered are below the cost of production. Conditions were such in many of the markets that the bulk of the offerings were bid in by the houses, which is equivalent to no sale. In some cases the growers personally refused to let their tobacco be sold.

Conditions were chaotic throughout the belt, yet a large amount of leaf passed into the hands of big tobacco firms. However, the growers headed the advice of E. C. Westbrook, tobacco expert of the State College of Agriculture, not to force their weed on the markets.

Lankford's Telegram.

Representative Lankford's telegram to the farm board was:

"Tobacco selling at a sacrifice and far below the cost of production. I urge use of all the power of the board to protect producers by immediate purchase of sufficient amount of leaf tobacco to establish reasonable price and maintain same."

Failing to obtain a reply Mr. Lankford sent a second telegram as follows:

"In addition to my request of yesterday I urge that you at once begin an investigation of the present outrageously low price level of leaf tobacco. Producers of tobacco feel they are being robbed and are wrought up as never before. In behalf of the farm I urge and plead for prompt action on the part of the board to take steps to bring about a fair price for the crop. I am awaiting a wire advising me what the board hopes to do."

The following reply, signed by James C. Stone, was received by Mr. Lankford:

"You are aware, I am sure, that the agricultural marketing act directs the board to operate a co-operative marketing association. Last fall and winter we brought this to the attention of farm leaders and tobacco growers of Georgia and other southern states, but no one seemed interested except the growers in South Carolina and Virginia. Tobacco co-operative was formed in South Carolina through which the board can will render aid, but it is impossible at this late date to aid unorganized growers."

The following statement was made by Mr. Lankford:

"I feared the farm board would concede it could not at this time take steps to alleviate the price of tobacco. The present deplorable condition brings to the attention of the nation more forcibly than ever the absolute necessity of a farm relief program which is ready at all times and under every circumstance to function effectively for the farmer. As heretofore pointed out by me, on numerous occasions, this can only be done by an effective control of production and marketing under a system of contracts with an agency of the government standing ready at all times with ample power to stabilize the price of tobacco, cotton and other farm products at a profitable price to the producer. A profitable price to the producer can be maintained without prejudice to the consumer. In fact, a square deal for the producer means more prosperous times for the whole country."

At Douglas sales were curtailed, but prices were a little better than

Lightning Kills One, Injures Two

ROAD BOARD LETS 10 BIG CONTRACTS

Heavy Damage Reported After Severe Hail Storm North and East of Atlanta.

One woman was killed and two others injured by lightning and much damage wrought crops and property in an around Atlanta in an electrical storm late Wednesday afternoon.

The woman killed was Mrs. C. C. Estes, 67 years old, who lived north of Decatur on the Lawrenceville road, while her sister, Mrs. J. T. Talton, and Mrs. Susie Kelly, 29, 125 Astoria street, were those injured. Mrs. Kelly was knocked unconscious and had to be removed to Grady hospital, where she was revived, but Mrs. Talton, it was reported, was injured only slightly.

Mrs. Estes was knocked down and killed while she was standing in the yard of her home. The body was removed to the undertaking parlors of A. S. Turner at Decatur.

In Atlanta the residence of J. S. and J. R. Sauls, 259 Cherokee place, was slightly damaged by a bolt, while north and east of the city heavy damage was reported to have been done to cotton and other crops and many small farm buildings were damaged considerably.

The crop damage was reported after a general hailstorm had visited the region north and east of the city, extending as far as Alpharetta.

P. G. Martin, of Clarkston, who passed through the storm area, reported that hundreds of acres of cotton, corn and potato plants were destroyed.

Cotton plants were stripped of leaves and the half-grown bolls either whipped open or broken off. Many acres of corn was beaten to earth and potato plants were ruined, even the runners being cut from the stalks.

No estimate of the amount of damage had been made Wednesday night, but the path of the storm is said to have extended from a point north of Alpharetta to Roswell.

WALTER TAYLOR GETS YEAR, $500

Former City Clerk Sentenced on Second Conviction in Graft Trials.

For the second time within a few months Walter C. Taylor, former city clerk, was sentenced to serve a year on the chain gang and to pay a fine on bribery when he appeared before Judge W. H. Moore in superior court Tuesday night on a charge of having offered a former councilman money to influence his vote.

In addition to imposing a year's sentence, Judge Moore assessed the convicted former city official a fine of $500, which makes the cumulative penalties imposed on Taylor following his convictions in the city hall corruption scandal aired by recent grand juries total two years' imprisonment and $1,500 fines.

Counsel for Taylor notified the court of their intention to appeal the Tuesday conviction. Walter Taylor was found guilty of having offered J. A. Beall, former councilman, $500 to influence his action in voting on pool licenses. Judge Moore set October 18 as the date for hearing of the appeal for a new trial. Taylor's bond was set at $1,000.

In his first trial, held several months ago, Taylor was convicted of having received a bribe of $500 from Marion Koon, a West Peachtree street property owner, for his action in connection with a petition to pave sidewalks on that street. In this case the conviction drew a sentence of 12 months on the chain gang as well as a fine of $1,000. That conviction now is on appeal.

Counsel for the former city clerk characterized the charges against Taylor as "persecution" and the defendant himself made a statement in court in which he categorically denied all testimony of witnesses relative to the charges against him as well as repudiated Beall's testimony and that of Cecil G. Allen, former councilman, and Jesse W. Armistead, former member of council's police committee, whom he declared are bitter political enemies.

"He undoubtedly is within this room now, and if we were phycic enough we should recognize his presence," she said.

NEW PROHIBITION CHIEF TO CONCENTRATE ON 'BIG FELLOWS'

Woodcock Frowns on Sensationalism and Tells Co-Workers To Seek "Uniform Justice."

BY RICHARD L. TURNER.

WASHINGTON, July 30.—(AP)—Maintenance of "steady pressure" against the larger violators of the dry laws was announced today by Prohibition Director Amos W. W. Woodcock as a guiding policy of the reorganized enforcement unit.

"I will not have our agencies following the court of least resistance and wasting their time upon pitiful, picaresque, non-commercial cases," he said. "I think the prohibition laws can be successfully enforced against commercial operations. I propose to make that our objective and not to dissipate our energies in other fields. I shall insist that a steady pressure be maintained against these commercial violations. I disapprove sensational methods."

Woodcock's statement was issued after a day spent in conference with the 12 administrators, recently appointed to take charge in the field, and a group of special agents responsible directly to national headquarters for investigation work.

Establishment of schools for training enforcement agents, institution of a system of daily reports from all enforcement districts and an effort to obtain uniform sentences for approximately similar violations, Woodcock said, also are to be undertaken.

Twenty-four picked men are to be instructed here, he explained, and then two will go to each administrative district to train the personnel there in methods of gathering evidence, in the substantive law and in habits of discipline.

To supplement the daily reports, a graphic picture of our activities throughout the country is being prepared, he said, which will furnish a picture of the progress of the prohibition movement in the United States, and the daily housewives of Atlanta are benefitting from her teaching and demonstrations on modern home-making.

Those in charge of the school feel that the attendance has been unusually large, when the extreme heat that has existed for several days is taken into consideration. The theater, however, is cool and comfortable in every respect; in fact, much cooler than the temperature outside.

The lectures and demonstrations start at 10 a. m., continuing until noon. The course started on Tuesday morning and will be concluded Friday morning, and judging from schools conducted in the past the attendance will increase with each day's session.

Mrs. Hall was introduced Wednesday by Howard Haire, manager of the classified advertising department of The Constitution, who acted in the absence of Herbert Porter, advertising director.

The recipes of delicious food included on Wednesday's program and covered in the lecture and actual demonstration by Mrs. Hall were: Special veal loaf, chocolate steamed pudding, carrots a la king, barbecued lamb, pink onion scallop and pecan pie.

Each day a new list of recipes is demonstrated at the school. Souvenir programs with the recipes of the day printed in detail will be given to all attending the school, and The Constitution invites the women of the city to be the paper's guests at the two remaining sessions.

Mrs. Hall has a national reputation as a home economist and has met with brilliant success in conducting cooking schools for years. She is a member of the National Home Economics Association and The Constitution in principal cities throughout the country.

Mr. Bennett becomes premier, succeeding Mr. King.

COOKING SCHOOL REGISTRARS CUT ATTENDANCE GAINS

Attendance at The Constitution's free electric cooking school, now in session at Keith's Georgia theater, jumped to more than 2,000 Wednesday, an increase of more than 500 over the opening day.

The statement pointed out that many registration oaths on file are six or eight or even ten years old, and that in some cases persons may have registered years ago for some election and they were particularly interested in the time and failed to make any tax returns since or they may have left the state.

There are several things citizens should understand as to registering and voting," the statement said. "Women who register for voting must pay poll taxes and property taxes the same as men. There seems to be some misunderstanding on this point. Women should give in their poll and their property for taxation in their own separate returns. A husband cannot include his wife's poll tax in his return. Voters over 60 years of age, whether men or women, are exempt from poll tax returns. When a voter removes from one ward or district to

FIVE U. S. SAILORS WOUNDED IN FIGHT WITH CHINA REDS

American Residents of War Zone Given Second Warning To Evacuate at Once.

SHANGHAI, July 30.—(AP)—Five American sailors were wounded when communists attacked the American gunboat Palos today while the vessel was approaching Changsha, Hunan province capital. The battle lasted about an hour. About 50 reds were killed and many more wounded.

U. S. WARNS CITIZENS TO GO.

WASHINGTON, July 30.—(AP)—Increased activity of bandits and communists in the provinces of Hupeh, Hunan, Honan and Kiangsi, today caused the American legation in Peking to act for the second time this month to protect American citizens.

Richard P. Butrick, of Hankow, circularized 419 Americans on July 11, warning them of the inadvisability of remaining in remote provinces because of the extreme danger. The legation at Peking today urged consular officials to warn Americans again of the necessity of withdrawing from remote spots to places where they could be adequately protected.

The navy now has its 6,000 men who refused to leave the region an increase in the forces could be expected. The decision of officers that the present force was sufficient to handle the situation. Other officers, however, said that should the communists threaten more thickly populated regions an increase in the forces could be expected.

In addition, the navy has 10 destroyers, 12 submarines, 5 tenders, 3 aircraft tenders, a tanker and several minesweepers in the Pacific in addition to its gunboats. It operates 24 airplanes in this region, while the marine corps has four planes at its base in Guam.

There are 1,200 marines in Shanghai, 500 at Peiping, and 650 at Guam. The latter could be conveyed to China on short notice.

Making, Drinking 'Brew' Held Legal By Macon Mayor

MACON, Ga., July 30.—(AP)—Manufacture, possession or consumption of home brew is legal, Mayor G. Glen Toole has ruled in a case in recorder's court here.

The case involved John Croft, charged with possessing beer and was heard yesterday by the mayor in the absence of Recorder M. Felton Hatcher.

Croft admitted ownership of home brew found in his home by officers, but said he made it for his own consumption.

The mayor said that recent supreme court decisions "clearly uphold the right of a citizen to make his own beer."

He said, however, the case would have been different if Croft had been charged with selling beer.

Attorneys said that under the state law, manufacture of beer is legal unless it contains more than a 1-2 percent alcoholic content.

The invitation is made of roses named for the president at a recent flower show sponsored by the department of agriculture.

SPEED INCREASED AS GIANT AIRSHIP ENTERS LAST LAP

Vessel Is Expected To Land at Montreal Airport Sometime During Forenoon Today.

WEATHER REPORTS "VERY FAVORABLE"

Radio Messages Tell of Uneventful Voyage for Pioneer in New Empire Air Trails.

MONTREAL, Quebec, July 30.—(UN)—The R-100, great British dirigible, was on the last stage tonight of its long non-stop flight from Cardington, England, to Montreal, making the trail for an empire air route.

The department of marine at Ottawa announced that the R-100 passed over Belle Isle at 9:30 o'clock eastern standard time.

All day the R-100 had made increasing good progress. After averaging 50 miles across most of the Atlantic, its speed approached 80 miles an hour as it neared the Newfoundland coast tonight.

The ship was expected to land at St. Hubert airport, Montreal, during the forenoon Thursday. A weather report late tonight said that very favorable conditions awaited the ship on its 900-mile course between the coast and St. Hubert airfield. There would be slight headwinds, the report said, but not of sufficient strength to impede its progress.

"Wind shifting to southwest and west," said the report. "Moderate or fresh in force with partly cloudy to fair weather. Outlook for Montreal fair with moderate westerly winds."

The R-100 messaged late this afternoon that it was approaching the coast. It was a 5 p. m. eastern standard time. It was reported that the ship was about 100 miles off Belle Isle strait, between Newfoundland and Labrador. It was making close to 80 miles an hour, favored with a tail wind. Twenty minutes after the report, the steamship Montcalm radioed she had just sighted the R-100.

Brief messages from the R-100 during this trip, taken from its log, indicated. There was, in addition, an occasional "Everything O. K."

MONTREAL, Quebec, July 30.—(AP)—With the great dirigible the skies have ever known bearing down on Canada on its first long flight from England, St. Hubert's airport outside this city, tonight, with preparations for its reception.

Out beyond the great mast where the R-100 will swing tomorrow night, long rows of sentries were raised to house the 600 soldiers and police who will handle the huge crowds expected to gather from all over the province.

In the hangar itself provisions were made to take care of the 44 men who are sailing the ocean air in Britain's latest bid for aerial supremacy.

Throughout the day the wireless station at St. Hubert's was in intermittent touch with the mighty dirigible, which is faster by far than either the Los Angeles of the United States navy or the Graf Zeppelin of Germany.

The R-100's course lay along Belle Isle strait between Labrador and Newfoundland, and down the St. Lawrence to the airport outside Montreal, so that for several hundred miles her lights skimming across the darkened skies should be visible to those willing to forego sleep.

There were plenty of evidences today that interest in the arrival of the R-100 was not confined within national boundaries. Newspaper reporters and cameramen by the dozen from the United States gathered today to make verbal and pictorial records of the arrival, and from the navy's bureau of aeronautics at Washington came Commander Charles R. Rosendahl, chief of American dirigible activities, who has himself flown the Atlantic in both the Los Angeles and the Graf Zeppelin.

The R-100 will be moored at a mast more than 100 feet high, in a general way similar to the original high mast at Lakehurst, N. J., used prior to construction under Commander Rosendahl's supervision of the mobile stub mast now employed there. Whereas it used to take about 200 men to handle the Los Angeles in a grounding operation before the stub mast was invented, officials here believe that the landing of the R-100 can

U. S. BUILDING LARGER SHIP.

WASHINGTON, July 30.—(AP)—As the world's largest dirigible forced her way across the Atlantic today, workmen laid the half-way mark in the construction of a United States airship, even larger than the R-100.

Since aeronautical experts hold nearly every lighter-than-air ship is obsolete by the time it flies, development of the navy's ZRS-4 may make the R-100 an out-dated craft.

Besides being nearly as third larger than the British dirigible, the American ship named the Akron, will incorporate half a dozen revolutionary features designed to increase its effectiveness. Where the R-100 holds only 5,150,000 cubic feet of gas, the Akron will hold 6,500,000. The Akron will be 785 feet long as contrasted with the R-100's 700-foot length. The R-100 has a cruising radius of about 6,000 miles, but the Akron will be able to fly 10,580 without refueling.

In the Akron, for the first time, there will be an airplane hangar, housing five fast fighting planes for scouting or protective purposes.

Because inflammable hydrogen is the lifting gas in the R-100, the British dirigible's motors must be hung outside the hull of the ship. Eight motors, with shafts running to propellers outside, will be inside the hull of the Akron. These propellers will have a swivel arrangement so they may be used to either push or pull, raise or lower the big gas bag.

For the first time a United States dirigible will carry guns when the Akron takes flight. It will be equipped to carry 16 50-calibre machine guns. The average machine gun fires bullets of only 30 calibre. While American naval officials feel the Akron will be more modern than the R-100, Lieutenant Commander Charles E. Rosendahl, a former commander of the Los Angeles, has planned to leave Washington in time to watch the Montreal ground crew handle the British ship. A new morning mast, there more than 200 feet high, or 30 feet taller than any in the United States, is to be used. The Akron is scheduled for completion by next June at a cost of $5,375,000, which a ZRS-3, costing $2,450,000, probably will be finished in the latter part of next year.

He cannot live in one place and vote in another, for convenience or any other reason. It is illegal to vote except where one's legal residence is. People should register and return their taxes in identical the same name to prevent confusion. We suggest that voters call at the office of the board, J. C. Under a new system of registration installed recently in the tax collector's office, the purging of the registration lists will be made easier in the future, it was said. Members of the board of registrars are: W. W. Gaines, chairman, P. W. Derrick and S. C. Gibbs.

TOBACCO GROWERS ARE DENIED AID

on the opening day. Farmers were still dissatisfied, however.

A mass meeting of tobacco growers in the Douglas district was held tonight, with Representative Lankford in attendance. The growers planned to insist that Senator W. J. Harris and Walter F. George and Commissioner of Agriculture Eugene Talma, of Georgia, make vigorous protest to the big tobacco companies of the country and the importers, too, on the low prices. The growers contend that the price of cigarettes, for tobacco most of the Georgia bright leaf tobacco is used, and other manufactured tobacco, does not warrant the prevailing price on the Georgia markets. Last year the opening day prices at Douglas ranged around 17 cents. With apparently similar grades offered this year the price was more than 7 cents under that mark.

Because of a storm tonight all telephone circuits to Douglas were out of order and the outcome of the meeting could not be determined.

MARKET IMPROVES AT DOUGLAS.

DOUGLAS, Ga., July 30.—A somewhat more stable tobacco market existed Wednesday throughout the belt. Reports from other markets indicated the price somewhat higher; however, the price here was lower, at 588,974 pounds brought $2,887,500, an average price of 10.71 on the Douglas market Tuesday. More than 300,000 pounds was rejected or taken off sale. The sales today were heavier than on the opening and the average price will probably be 1 to 2 cents higher. There has been no disorder here, but very great disappointment at prevailing prices. All agencies advise farmers to keep strings and trash out of tobacco. The companies do not want it and the price is severely reduced where they occur.

TONNAGE LOWERED AT VALDOSTA.

VALDOSTA, Ga., July 30.—The dissatisfaction following yesterday's tobacco sales was reflected in the lowering of tonnage offered on sale today, it being estimated that the total sales amounted to 139,372 at an average estimated at $10. The sales were held for today in four warehouses, the fifth warehouse being engaged all day in removing yesterday's stock.

6 CENTS LOW PRICE AT THOMASVILLE.

THOMASVILLE, Ga., July 30.—A detailed check of the Thomasville tobacco sales was reflected in the lowering of tonnage offered on sale today, it being estimated that the total sales amounted to 139,372 at an average estimated at $10. The sales were held for today in four warehouses, the fifth warehouse being engaged all day in removing yesterday's stock.

Growers of this locality appear greatly disappointed and to have a deep feeling of resentment at the low prices they are getting for their product. The subject is constantly discussed and action of some sort, looking to improvement of the price situation, is agitated, though just what plan they may pursue has not yet evolved from the discussions.

Local men who have visited other markets within a radius of 40 miles from here, state that the situation was found to be similar to that prevailing here. On Tuesday sales tickets in many markets hereabouts were turned down and stock taken from the warehouses.

AVERAGE PRICE 11.80 AT CAMILLA.

CAMILLA, Ga., July 30.—(AP)—Official figures for the first day's sales on the local bright leaf tobacco market announced today placed the average price at 11.8 cents per pound with total sales of 115,082 pounds for a total value of $23,602.05. The weather here today was fair with a fair grade of tobacco offered.

MARKET SEEMS TO BE STRONGER AT ADEL.

ADEL, Ga., July 30.—(AP)—The tobacco market here appeared somewhat stronger Wednesday, with approximately 500,000 pounds on the floors. The bidding was somewhat more spirited than yesterday, and indications were the price would be better than the opening day's.

AVERAGE PRICE 12.72 IN QUITMAN MARKET.

QUITMAN, Ga., July 30.—(AP)—The second day of the tobacco market opened today, with 78,872 pounds on the floor of the two Quitman warehouses. The average price today was 12.72 cents per pound.

The tobacco is of an unusually good quality, although the price is lower than last year. The farmers have expressed much dissatisfaction over the price.

AVERAGE PRICE 13.44 AGAINST 19.05 IN 1929.

TEFTON, Ga., July 30.—(AP)—Opening days sales on the Tefton tobacco market were 616,356 pounds that brought $82,864.94 for an average price of 13.44 cents.

Only two warehouses sold out, buyers being unable to reach the third warehouse. Farmers apparently were well satisfied.

Few sales were rejected. The opening average last year was 19.05 cents, and in 1928 was 12.93.

AVERAGE PRICE OF 12 CENTS REPORTED BY VALDOSTA.

VALDOSTA, Ga., July 30.—(AP)—Sales on the Valdosta tobacco market on the opening day were revealed Wednesday as 815,000 pounds, bringing an average price of 12 cents per pound with approximately $73,000 paid by the buyers.

Sales early Wednesday with a half million pounds of tobacco on the floor brought an average of about 12 cents per pound. Much dissatisfaction has been expressed by the farmers of this section over the low prices they have received for their product. Many of the growers refused to sell at the prevailing prices and are holding for a better market.

The movement of tobacco on the market here today was much slower than on yesterday because of the low price. Only 300,000 pounds of tobacco was received at the warehouses today.

SALES AVERAGE $9.51 AT CAIRO.

CAIRO, Ga., July 30.—Tobacco sales here today totaled 48,770 pounds, which brought an average of $9.51 per hundred pounds. The quality was poor but the prices per grade appeared even lower than at the opening yesterday, although there were very few objections of sales. Growers generally expressed keen dissatisfaction and there appears to be a growing disposition among them to hold their product off the market. The farmers seem to feel that the domestic companies, particularly, are failing to do their full part in upholding the prices.

Confession Clears 2-Year-Old Murder

BOULOGNE, France, July 30.—(AP)—A murder mystery which puzzled

French and English police for two years is solved with the arrest of a slender and blond 16-year-old boy.

Numerous attacks upon women in the vicinity of Le Touquet, fashionable ocean resort, since 1928 have been marked by the fact that the assailant usually was described as a childlike blond youth. Yesterday morning a chambermaid who recently had been attacked recognized in a young man, Andre Leloutre, the youth who had assaulted her.

He was arrested and police say he confessed to many attacks upon women.

en, including the brutal killing of Florence Wilson, a former English war nurse, in May of 1928. Miss Wilson was found in a thicket near a golf club, 14 knife wounds on her body.

Delighted With White Lily Flour

"Flour, of course, is the base of all cooking school material, and without good flour we demonstrators could not get very far," said Mrs. Hall. "I have been delighted with WHITE LILY FLOUR. It has served my purpose here in Atlanta as well as any flour I have ever used. I find it especially suited for cake baking and for pastry making, as well as most excellent for baking biscuits. Any good cook can be assured of getting good results with it."

At Last! A Light Powder That Stays On Better than all others

Now there is an amazing new kind of face powder which is marvelously adhesive—it clings despite wind and perspiration, yet it is not absorbed by the skin. (Blackheads are often caused by the skin absorbing inferior powders.)

This wonderful new face powder is actually a skin tonic—it is compounded of certain imported ingredients which have almost magical results in correcting enlarged pores, pimples, blemishes, roughness, and blackheads. It forms a soft, protective cushion over the skin, which allows the complexion to grow young again shielded from its three devastating enemies—glaring sun, harsh winds, and gritting dust. while in a fourth case the defendant, Preston Calcutt of Ludowick, was granted a new trial.

The men for whom the high court affirmed capital punishment are: Fred H. Fair, Fulton county, convicted of the murder of J. E. McDaniel, Atlanta policeman.

Sam P. Aiken, Fulton county, convicted of the murder of his wife and Boyce Hunter.

Earl Manchester, Bibb county, convicted of the murder of James Parks, of Hapeville.

Calcutt, who gets a new trial because of errors in the trial below, was convicted of slaying Herbert Phillips, a Ludowick poolroom proprietor. He received the news of a new trial without comment.

Fred H. Fair shot Patrolman McDaniel last year while the officer was grappling with him after he (Fair) had fired at T. L. Griffin as the latter was starting an automobile in which three women were riding.

Fair, in his trial, contended that the slaying of the policeman was voluntary manslaughter because, after he had fired at Griffin, and after the women in the car had screamed, he started to run and fell into the outstretched arms of the officer. During a struggle, he testified, the gun he had was accidentally discharged.

In upholding the conviction and death sentence in the lower court, the supreme court said that the evidence authorized the verdict and that the lower court was not in error in refusing a new trial. The supreme court also held that the charge of the judge to the jury was more favorable to the defense than even the defense attorneys had asked.

Aiken, who was indicted for the murder of his wife and Boyce Hunter, whom he alleged he found together in his home last June 18, 1929, was convicted of the murder of the former and sentenced to die.

The high court took cognizance of the brutal manner in which Aiken slew his wife, citing the fact that the evidence showed the husband to have chased her from the house into the backyard against a fence, where she fell on her knees, and to have then poured a load of buckshot into her body while she pleaded with him for life.

The record also showed that Hunter was shot to death while he was sitting in a chair in the dining room of the Aiken home.

The evidence supported the verdict and the jury was authorized to find Aiken guilty of murder, the supreme court held, adding that the failure of the jury to take into consideration a recommendation for mercy was not reviewable.

However, the court held that the statement of the defendant, which constituted a plea for acquittal on the ground of the unwritten law, would have authorized a verdict of manslaughter and the judge so charged, but it was evident the jury did not believe Aiken.

In handing down a decision affirming the death sentence of Earl Manchester, convicted of the murder of James Parks, the supreme court did not decide the case of Mrs. Sarah Elizabeth Powers, also of Macon, who was convicted as an accessory to the slaying and also sentenced to death.

Manchester killed Parks in May, 1929. The state charged Mrs. Powers offered Manchester $1,000 to kill Parks, on whom she held an insurance policy, and Manchester's alleged confession to that effect was introduced in evidence at the trial.

Mrs. Powers' case was argued last week and is now under consideration of the supreme court.

Len B. Guillebeau, sole counsel for Fair, Wednesday afternoon expressed disappointment at the decision, and announced that a motion for a rehearing will be made in the supreme court. "I will keep up the fight and do everything possible for my client," Guillebeau said. He expressed the opinion that he has good grounds for a motion for a rehearing.

In an effort to save his client's life, Guillebeau has taken the case to the state supreme court twice. His fight for Fair has lasted over two years, and through two lower court trials. Fair was convicted and given the death sentence in 1929.

Guillebeau took the case to the supreme court and obtained a new trial. The second conviction likewise was appealed. Affirmation of the sentence will be fought to the end, it was indicated Wednesday by Guillebeau, who has never had a client to pay the death penalty during his 17 years of law practice.

"I WAS A FOOL," MANCHESTER SAYS.

MACON, Ga., July 30.—(AP)—Told that the Georgia supreme court had denied him a new trial after more than six months of deliberation, Earl Manchester, 21, condemned, today expressed keen disappointment, and reaffirmed a statement made last spring in which he repented his previous confession of murder and declared he was not the slayer of James W. Parks, 18, on May 27, 1929.

"I know I made a fool of myself for telling that first story about the thing, but the last statement I made was the whole truth," he said.

The supreme court handed down a decision today affirming the trial court. The youth, a Canadian by birth, but who came here from Rochester, Mich., was convicted in June of last year after he confessed to county officers that he murdered Parks, a roommate, for $1,000 promised him by Mrs. Sarah E. Powers, 72, their landlady. Mrs. Powers, it was shown, carried $14,000 insurance on the life of Parks. She, too, is under death sentence. Her case was argued in the supreme court only a few days ago.

Manchester first said that he took Parks down to the banks of the Ocmulgee river late on the night of May 27, 1929, and killed him. He and Mrs. Powers were arrested at their Cherry street apartment the following day.

The youth stuck to that statement for several months, even after the case had gone to the supreme court. Last spring, however, he called his counsel, R. D. Feagin, and told him another version. The last story implicated him only as an accessory after the fact of murder—only a misdemeanor in the eyes of the law.

The statement was made, however, too late for Mr. Feagin to make it a part of the record before the higher court. Throughout the many months of the court's deliberation, Manchester had been hopeful of a new trial, and finally an acquittal on the murder charge.

When the news came today Manchester said he felt "worse than ever."

Mr. Feagin's next move, it was said, will be to file a motion for a rehearing. That denied, if it should be, he said he would take the usual course before the prison commission and then to the governor.

Population of Iowa
Set at 2,467,900

WASHINGTON, July 30.—(AP)—Iowa's state total was announced by the census bureau today as 2,467,900, an increase of 63,579, or 2.7 per cent.

This total was less than the 2,408,747 based on announcements of the local supervisors. The census bureau said the new figure was also subject to revision in the final official count.

FOSTER IS IDENTIFIED AS SLAYER OF LINGLE

Policeman Says Arrested Gangster Killed Chicago Reporter.

CHICAGO, July 30.—(UN)—Seven weeks after the murder of Alfred J. Lingle, Chicago Tribune reporter, a patrolman dramatically identified Frankie Foster, dapper gangster, today as the man who fled after the slaying.

Foster, arrested in Los Angeles after the killing, was returned here for questioning. At one time he owned the gun which killed Lingle in a crowded subway under Michigan boulevard, police said. They added that they merely wanted to question him, that they believed he had no actual connection with the murder.

A hearing today on a motion to admit Foster to bail was almost over when Patrolman Anthony Ruthy, who was near the scene of the slaying, was called. Attorney Harold Levy, counsel for Foster, incidentally, asked him to testify.

"I heard a revolver shot. I saw a man running down the street and I chased him," said the officer.

"Have you seen this man since?" asked Levy.

The patrolman pointed to Foster, who was sitting negligently several feet away.

"That's him," announced Ruthy. Levy's jaw dropped. "Are you positive?" he asked.

"Yes," replied Ruthy. "That's the man."

Foster's wife stifled a scream. The courtroom was hushed. Someone tittered hysterically. Foster and Judge Daniel P. Trade were the only men in the room who remained calm.

Judge Trade already had continued Foster's case to September 9. Prosecutors were expected to try to persuade him to re-set the case earlier in view of Ruthy's unexpected testimony.

A grand jury, conducting a separate investigation into the Lingle murder, meanwhile, heard its final witnesses, Patrick Roche, chief investigator for the state's attorney, and Charles F. Rathburne, Tribune lawyer, appointed special assistant prosecutor to delve into the slaying. They were reported to have told the jurors "in a general way" the progress they had made in their inquiry.

"I can't tell you what I told the jurors," said Roche upon emerging from the star chamber, "but did you hear them applaud me when I finished?"

The fire damaged the first and second floors of the four-story structure to an extent of $50,000. The premises were opened on Monday as the Lincoln galleries and a group of 61 paintings were on display.

Fire officials said the blaze appeared to have started in the rear of a couch on the first floor and an inspector of the state fire marshal's office was summoned to investigate. A report of incendiaryism was made after a fire in the Barton gallery two years ago. Barton said the paintings were insured for $174,000. A Rembrandt valued at $100,000 on display in the galleries had been returned to New York before the fire.

Fortune in Paintings Mysteriously Burned

NEW CONTAINERS ADOPTED BY NORRIS

Sales Representatives Open
Two-Day Session Here
Today.

New containers adopted by Norris, Inc., Atlanta candy manufacturer with a nation-wide trade, will be introduced at the annual conference of the sales force which will open here today, with headquarters at the Atlanta Athletic Club.

Max M. Lowenstein, president of the company, will introduce the new boxes to the sales force. The convention will continue for two days, and the principal subjects to be discussed will be based on styles in merchandising, according to Mrs. Claire M. Lang, art director of the company, who designed the new boxes.

Many prominent Atlantans will address the salesmen during the convention, among them being Raymond A. Kline, vice president of H. H. Macy & Co., and general manager of Davison-Paxon Company.

Mr. Kline will speak on "Style in Merchandising." Mr. Kline will be followed by Sinclair Jacobs, president of the Jacobs, pharmacy chain of drug stores, whose subject will be "The Importance of Style in Merchandising Sold in Drug Stores."

"Keeping Norris Candies to the Present Day Style" will be the subject of an address by Mrs. Lang, who will point out many of the new features to be found in the new containers.

George Dodson, representing the Hargrave System, of Chicago, who is to attend the convention, will speak on "The Psychology of Selling." After an address by E. J. Dittig on "The Production of Norris Candies," the salesmen will be carried on a tour through the factory, where everything concerning the manufacture of the Norris products will be explained in detail.

Other speakers at the convention will be James A. Greene, A. L. Norris, vice president of the company; J. D. Norris, J. S. Jetton and W. D. Doak. A dinner-dance at the East Lake Country Club will bring the convention to a close.

Kentuckians Thought Victims of Hit-Run Car

LOUISVILLE, Ky., July 30.—(P) Edward Myers, 19, who fought here under the name of Young Jimmy Finley, and Hubert Hargrove, 19, were found dead on the Pulaski pike near Columbia, Tenn., last night. They apparently were the victims of a hit-and-run driver.

The two boys, both Louisville residents, left here Tuesday to visit Hargrove's uncle, Earl Hargrove, in Athens, Ala. They expected to walk or catch rides as they could from automobilists. They had about $18 between them and more than $5 was found on their persons.

Reports received here said that a coroner's jury first returned a verdict of "murder by unknown parties," but that further investigation indicated that an automobile had struck the youths. Both their skulls were fractured. The bodies were found by Louis Finney and his mother, Mrs. J. R. Finney, of Columbia.

SHERLOCK HOLMES—Case of the "Gloria Scott"

Holmes paused to fill his pipe, then resumed his story: "Some days later we were sitting upon the lawn, the three of us, when a maid came to say there was a man at the door who wanted to see Mr. Trevor but would not give his name. 'Show him round here,' the old man said."

"An instant after there appeared a little wizened fellow with a cringing manner and a shambling style of walking. His face was thin and brown and crafty, with a perpetual smile upon it, and his crinkled hands were half closed in a way that is distinctive of sailors."

The Disturbing Visitor

"As he came slouching across the lawn, I heard Mr. Trevor make a sort of hiccupping noise in his throat, and, jumping out of his chair, he ran into the house."

By SIR ARTHUR CONAN DOYLE

"He was back in a moment, and I smelt a strong reek of brandy as he passed me. 'Well, my man, what can I do for you?' 'The sailor stood looking at him with puckered eyes. 'You don't know me?' he asked."

Attitude of candidates for the state legislature from Fulton county toward a proposed amendment to the charter of Atlanta providing for reduction of general council to a small one-chamber body elected by the city at large instead of by district, was sought in a questionnaire promulgated by the

"Will you support," asks the questionnaire, with reference to the proposed councilmanic elections amendment, "with a referendum to the people of Atlanta, an amendment to the charter of the city of Atlanta to provide for the reduction of general council to a small one-chamber body, all the members to be voted on by the city at large?"

Another subject on which candidates from this county are queried is that regarding the proposal to reduce the membership of the city board of education, all members of which would be elected by the city at large; while a third interrogation deals with the projected bill to provide for one central registration for all primaries and elections—city, county, state and national, "which shall be permanent, simple, economical and with the least possibility of fraud."

Personal questions propounded include the nature of the profession in which they are engaged; length of residence in Atlanta or Fulton county; their opinion as to their qualifications for office and so forth. State measures pending or proposed toward which the office-seekers are asked to Atlanta League of Women Voters and made public Wednesday.

Devoted largely to queries of candidates' reactions to proposed measures affecting Atlanta and Fulton county, the questionnaire also includes many inquiries on questions of statewide scope, such as maternity, juvenile, infant and illegitimacy statutes which already have in some instances been placed before the general assembly but upon which no final action has been obtained.

Will you vote only for such matters as have been so advertised? In the last session of the legislature this law and the custom were violated."

U. S. Seeks Cattle For Alaska Areas

WASHINGTON, July 30.—(P)—Seeking suitable cattle for the frozen areas of Alaska, the department of agriculture has placed an order for a herd of 30 musk-oxen. Experiments are to be made in domesticating them. An experienced collector has been given the task of obtaining the musk-oxen in Greenland. Forty thousand dollars was appropriated for the purpose by the last session of congress. Resembling small-sized buffalo, musk-oxen are considered the most truly arctic of the larger mammals native to North America. They once existed in Alaska, but are now extinct.

MISS MORROW LEADS IN 'QUEEN' CONTEST

With more than 17,000 votes already polled and only two more days before the closing of the polls, Mildred Morrow, of Williamson park,

MILDRED MORROW.

Wednesday afternoon took a substantial lead in the contest for selection of a queen to reign over the mammoth pageant at Piedmont park August 16, marking the closing of the play season in Atlanta.

Miss Morrow, Williamson entrant, had a total of 2,611 votes as against 2,228 for Evelyn Moore, of Mims, runner-up. Ellene Terry, of Maddox, was third with 1,188.

Every person in Atlanta is entitled to cast one ballot in the selection of the queen. There are 28 entrants, one from each of the white play centers in operation.

All ballots must be in the hands of Mrs. Chester W. Johnson, supervisor of playgrounds, by midnight of August 1 in order to be counted and there will be no exception, according to park officials.

Plans for the closing of the parks this year are the most pretentious in the history of the system.

The queen will reign over a court of the most beautiful belles in Atlanta, and she will be honored by a parade of knights selected from the various parks and mounted on ponies from the city-operated pony tracks.

The second highest vote-getter will have the honor of crowning the queen, and others in the contest will be maids of honor.

NEW FRIGIDAIRE ATTRACTS INTEREST

Great interest has been shown in the display at the local Frigidaire showroom of the new low-price electric refrigerator, which is designed to bring the advantages of mechanical refrigeration to the millions of average income families, according to J. B. Reeves, manager of the Atlanta branch.

"An unusual number of people visit our showroom daily to inspect this new Frigidaire," he said, "and many of the models have been placed in homes in this section since the display opened. The display will be continued for some time, and we have extended an invitation to every housewife to be our guest and inspect this latest General Motors product."

"The low price which is made possible by new production and engineering economies, reductions in prices of raw materials and an anticipated large demand from an altogether different class of buyers—is proving quite a magnet."

The new Frigidaire is finished in glacier gray porcelain-on-steel inside and out, has all modern electric refrigerator developments and is built according to standard specifications. Mr. Reeves explained. It has a cold control for fast freezing of ice cubes and desserts, four and one-half square feet of shelf space and makes 24 ice cubes at a time, he said. A second model is a size larger.

Salesmen Will Give Melon Party Tonight

82D VETERANS SEEK FUNDS FOR REUNION

Campaign to obtain approximately $15,000 with which to entertain in true southern fashion the thousands of former members of the famous 82d division, known during the World War as the "All-American" division of the A. E. F., was launched Wednesday by a committee appointed during a meeting of the 82d Division Association of Atlanta.

With definite arrangements under way for housing and entertaining the large number of former buddies of the noted overseas division, which will hold its reunion here September 23, 27 and 28, the attention of the reunion committee now will be directed toward raising the funds necessary to such an undertaking, it was said.

Members of the funds committee will begin to visit leading business concerns and financial institutions, solicitation among individual Atlantans until the needed sum has been obtained. J. A. Bankston, treasurer and finance chairman of the local camp of the association, said.

Temporary headquarters of the reunion committee have been established in the offices of the Atlanta Convention and Tourist Bureau and personnel in charge of the arrangements includes Scott Candler, president; Trammell Scott, first vice president; Joseph R. Cook, second vice president; W. P. Middlebrooks, secretary; J. A. Bankston, treasurer. Besides these, the general committee is composed of Major Warren Moise, Major Forville McWhorter, Fitzhugh Knox, Jr., R. P. McCarty, Louis Morrison, Julian Hirschberg, S. B. (Si) Hawkins, A. J. Manning, John M. Outler, Jr., and H. H. McCall.

"Flies are highly dangerous"

says The United States Public Health Service

When children come down sick with typhoid or summer complaint, which kills more than 1/5 of the children who die under five, what is the cause? Often the disease has been brought into the home by flies. The government calls the common fly "the worst of all man's natural enemies," because "there can be no doubt of the house fly's responsibility for much sickness and many deaths."

Be comfortable and safe. Keep your home insect-free. Spray Flit, which is guaranteed (or money back) to be quick-death to flies, mosquitoes, moths, roaches, bed bugs and other household insects. Yet its clean-smelling vapor is harmless to humans.

KINGAN TO BUILD NEW BRANCH PLANT

$125,000 Structure Will Be Erected at Peters and Fair Streets.

Kingan & Co., packers, will construct a branch plant costing approximately $125,000 at the northeast corner of Peters and West Fair streets, it was announced Wednesday by J. M. Royall, Atlanta branch manager. Mr. Royall says that construction will start immediately. The building will have two stories and basement, and will be equipped to serve the entire Atlanta territory, including all of the state of Georgia and part of Alabama and North Carolina.

The site for the warehouse was purchased about five years ago, Mr. Royall says, with the intention of building at the proper time. The new branch was made necessary, according to Mr. Royall, because of growth in the company's business.

Contract for the construction of the building has been let to Brazell, Miller and Newbanks, Inc., well-known Atlanta contractors, which specializes in plants of this kind. This plant, it was stated, will be one of the finest of its type in this section of the country and foundation will be laid for further development there.

The site, facing on Peters street, measures 140x150 feet. The building will front 70 feet on Peters street

"Sargon not only gave me new health and strength, and increased my weight from eighty-five pounds to even one hundred, but my family and friends believe just as I do, that it actually saved my life," recently stated Mrs. E. C. Bennett, 663 Kabb St. S. E., Atlanta. Mrs. Bennett is a member of the Cameron St. Baptist church, and before her illness was an active member of the Woman's Missionary Society.

MRS. E. C. BENNETT

"My health began to fail five years ago, but last January I had a severe breakdown, which left me with practically no strength at all. I had to live on a liquid diet, and even that would often cause gastric indigestion so bad that I'd have palpitation of the heart, get perfectly limp, and almost stop breathing. My whole body shook from nervousness, my hand trembled so I couldn't hold a glass of water, and I had to take some kind of medicine before I could sleep at all. I was bilious and constipated, and took a laxative or purgative every night of the world. Nothing seemed to bring me more than slight temporary relief, and I was getting weaker all the time, when someone told me of Sargon. I've taken fourteen bottles of this marvelous medicine and am gaining in health and strength every day. I not only help my daughter with the house work, but I astonished my friends by walking into church a few Sundays ago. I eat anything I want now, even to cabbage, hold my cup of coffee with a steady hand, and sleep just grand every night."

"Those wonderful Sargon Pills regulated me perfectly and entirely relieved me of biliousness and constipation. It's just marvelous what this wonderful treatment has done for me!"

Sargon may be obtained in Jacobs' Pharmacies.—(adv.)

GAS COMPANY NAMES MRS. DULL COUNSEL

Appointment of Mrs. S. R. Dull, home economics expert and one of the best-known authorities on southern cooking, as advisory counsel for the home service department of the Atlanta Gas Light Company, was announced Wednesday by J. W. Gates, general manager of the company. Mr. Gates says that Mrs. Dull's new connection will not interfere with any of her varied activities.

A four-day cooking school, free to everyone interested, and to be conducted at the auditorium on the fourth floor of the Gas Company building beginning Tuesday of next week, will be Mrs. Dull's first public activity on behalf of the gas company. This will be followed by public demonstrations at least twice monthly, in connection with the Gas Company's home service department, it was announced.

With the exception of the cooking schools and demonstrations scheduled, Mrs. Dull's work will be advisory to Miss Cephalie Lewis, home service director, and her staff, and through this department will be available to all gas company patrons.

For many years Mrs. Dull has been recognized as an outstanding authority on southern cooking, and her textbooks and recipes have reached almost a worldwide circulation.

Motor Boatmen Carry On Despite Serious Illness

BY ROY E. WHITE.

Hard luck again reached out on the Lakewood park lake Wednesday to endanger Joe Logan and J. J. Hardegree's attempt to set a new world's outboard motor endurance record, but with the aid of an ever-alert refueling crew and a physician, the contest was again well on its way after having passed the halfway mark of 120 hours late Wednesday.

Neither Logan nor Hardegree had been able to get any good sleep before Tuesday night and a physician was summoned. He examined both pilots and stated that their blood pressure was below normal and their digestion was not as it should be.

He immediately prescribed a first aid remedy and put the record seekers on a liquid diet. A diet of that diet has to be taken every three hours for 48 hours after which it will be reduced in strength.

After taking the physician's advice during Tuesday night and Wednesday, both pilots seemed better and were waving to hundreds of spectators throughout the latter part of Wednesday.

Late Wednesday afternoon a hurry call was sent to the refueling crew for a fire extinguisher. Some gasoline and oil had been spilled in the bottom of the 16-foot craft and the motor is slightly greasy from continual running since last Friday afternoon. Extinguishers have been installed on both the endurance and refueling craft.

The tiny 12 horsepower twin cylinder motor continued to pull its load late Wednesday night with no apparent signs of weakening. It was clicking smoothly.

Prize money for the endurance seekers as they pile up hours and days in their boat, is mounting. The Wofford Oil Company is rewarding the crew with a cash prize. Each 24 hours they keep the craft motoring after the first day on the water will add to their awards.

On the eve of their departure for their homes all over the southeastern states, the approximately 200 members of the second group of reserve officers at Fort McPherson for special instruction in tactics tonight will tender a dance to the regular post officers in return for the honor extended the students on July 22 by a reception staged by regular officers of the 22nd infantry.

The second training period of the midsummer student officer encampments held at Fort McPherson will come to a conclusion Saturday, and the third and final contingent of reserve student officers of the fourth corps area will begin arriving Sunday for the last two weeks of study in practical military tactics.

The second period of study was under the direction of Colonel R. T. Quick, commanding officer of the infantry "school," with Colonel Howard Parrish as executive officer of the infantry companies, Major W. K. Carswell, of Augusta, as adjutant and Major J. I. Laird, battalion commander, Captain E. G. Walsh is instructor for the entire three periods of training.

A committee in charge of plans for tonight's dance consists of Miss Helen B. E. Fort, McPherson; Miss Louise Ernst, Philadelphia; and Mrs. R. C. Hamlett, of New Orleans; Lieutenants R. C. Hamlett, James W. Keith and Harold J. Rango.

Containing the motor carrier's act of 1929 gave to the Georgia public service commission sole authority to regulate bus lines, the Inter-City Coach Company sought injunction against the city which Judge G. H. Howard denied. The company then appealed to the supreme court.

In passing on the case, the court divided, Justices Beck, Hill and Gilbert holding that the decision in the lower court should have been upheld while Chief Justice Russell and Justices Atkinson and Hines dissented without filing opinions.

High Court Upholds City Bus Routings

The ordinance passed by the council of the city of Atlanta on October 11, 1929, designating the routes over which busses might operate, was upheld in a decision handed down by the Georgia supreme court Wednesday.

Containing the motor carrier's act of 1929 gave to the Georgia public service commission sole authority to regulate bus lines, the Inter-City Coach Company sought injunction against the city which Judge G. H. Howard denied. The company then appealed to the supreme court.

In passing on the case, the court divided, Justices Beck, Hill and Gilbert holding that the decision in the lower court should have been upheld while Chief Justice Russell and Justices Atkinson and Hines dissented without filing opinions.

ATLANTA LANDMARK THREATENED BY FIRE

Department Extinguishes Blaze on Forsyth After Hard Fight.

Originating in the basement of a store just around the corner from headquarters of the fire department, a fire early Wednesday threatened for a time to gain headway that would destroy one of Atlanta's oldest landmarks, the Maddox and Rucker building at Forsyth and Alabama streets.

After a stubborn battle of three hours during which virtually every unit of fire-fighting equipment in the city was called out, the flames were extinguished. Damage was confined mostly to that from smoke and water and has not been estimated.

The fire was discovered shortly before 1:30 o'clock by Patrolman Paul Morgan, who turned in the first alarm. Within a few moments after headquarters apparatus had gone into action a general alarm was sounded, to which all major equipment responded, and soon numerous high-powered hose lines were playing streams into the basements of stores at 23, 25, 27, 29 and 33 Forsyth street, while others were busy around the corner at the building occupied by the Fulton market on Alabama street.

Not until after 3 o'clock was the basement area declared clear of fire, and it was after dawn when the last hose had been rolled up and hauled away by the weary fire crews who had been forced to work against one of the worst smoke menaces in downtown fire records.

Stores damaged by the flames, smoke and water were those of the George Poulos soda fountain, the Forsyth restaurant, which was open for business Wednesday; Gwinn's Shoe shop, Giles and Allen Barbershop, the Atlanta Blank Book Company, an unoccupied store on Forsyth street, and the Fulton market. The principal fire damage was only to the wooden partitions separating the basements of the respective stores, while the water and smoke damage, while extensive, was not expected to run high.

Chase Will Oversee New East Point Hall

William J. J. Chase, Atlanta architect, has been chosen by the East Point bond commission to oversee the work on a $70,000 auditorium and city hall which is scheduled to begin September 15, according to Dr. J. A. Yeast, chairman of the bond commission.

Besides the auditorium, which will have a seating capacity of approximately 2,000, the structure will contain the council chamber, the recorder's court, and quarters for the various departments of the borough. Facing East Point avenue and occupying an entire square, it will add materially to the civic and social advantages of East Point, one of the most progressive boroughs of Greater Atlanta.

Radio has completed arrangements to broadcast late today from Montreal, Canada, the story of the arrival of the British dirigible R-100. If the ship is delayed the broadcast will be made Friday.

Although the exact time is indefinite, the plans provide for going on the air shortly before the big air boat is due to land at St. Hubert airport after its flight from England.

The National Broadcasting Company and the Columbia Broadcasting System will use extensive networks of stations in the United States to carry the oral report. Two Canadian chains will transmit the story, announcers at the field will be supplied by the department of home defense of Canada.

Due to the fact that the time of the broadcast depends upon the speed the dirigible makes, station lists are not available.

A special program of dance music will be broadcast from Atlantic City, N. J., during "Dancing by the Sea," a program routed through WPG and over WGST of the Columbia Broadcasting network at 3:15 this afternoon.

Johnny Johnson and his popular dance orchestra will be featured in another program in the RCA summer series to be broadcast by the RCA Radiotone Company this evening at 8 o'clock from WSB and an NBC network. The program, which has been arranged by Nathaniel Shilkret, will also present Elliott Shaw, baritone, and a concert orchestra under the direction of Rosario Bourdon. Numbers to be heard include compositions by Severe Itching Eczema For Years. Healed by Cuticura.

"I had eczema for many years. It appeared under my arms and on my body in the form of pimples, and the itching was so severe that I had to scratch until it bled. My clothing aggravated the breaking out, which caused disfigurement and gradually spread. I could not sleep sound on account of it."

"I read an advertisement for Cuticura Soap and Ointment so purchased some, and after using two boxes of Cuticura Ointment and two cakes of Cuticura Soap I was completely healed, in about two months."

(Signed) John Theurer, 2220-M St. N. W., Washington, D. C.

Soap 25c. Ointment 25c. and 50c. Talcum 25c. Sold everywhere. Sample each free. Address: "Cuticura Laboratories, Dept. H, Malden, Mass."

What most people call indigestion is usually excess acid in the stomach. The food has soured. The instant remedy is an alkali which neutralizes acids, but don't take crude bismuth. Use what your doctor would advise.

The best help is Phillips' Milk of Magnesia. For the 50 years since its invention it has remained standard with physicians. You will find nothing else so quick in its effect, so harmless, so efficient.

One tasteless spoonful in water neutralizes many times its volume in acid. The results are immediate, with no bad after-effects. Once you learn this fact, you will never deal with excess acid in the crude ways. Go learn—now—why this method is supreme.

Be sure to get the genuine Phillips' Milk of Magnesia prescribed by physicians for 7 years in correcting excess acids. 25c and 50c a bottle—any drug store.

"Milk of Magnesia" has been the U. S. Standard Trade Mark of The Charles H. Phillips Chemical Company and its predecessor, Charles H. Phillips, since 1875.—(adv.)

Hauling Woman Prisoner Costly, To Be Returned

Asks City To Pay To Little Points

H. W. Kraft, who acted a good Samaritan on July 1, is seeking $12 of the Atlanta police department.

This became known Wednesday night at the regular semi-monthly meeting of the police committee, and a woman, who kicked too hard and too violently is blamed for the trouble which visited Kraft.

On the night of July 1, 1930, W. A. Buck, police officer, was attempting to arrest the woman, who was with him. She, according to the letter which Kraft wrote the committee, was intoxicated with a strongly potent dose.

Buck called a patrol wagon. They were all busy. She was violent and fighting. Kraft cruised by in his car, and Buck commanded it and the trio piled into a front seat.

No sooner than they were all comfortably and apparently peacefully seated, than the woman raised her foot and kicked the windshield with such force that a breakable windshield was shattered.

Kraft says the cost of $12 and asks the city to reimburse him.

The committee voted Wednesday night to take whatever steps are necessary to pay for the damage.

L. W. Pierce's Death Laid to Heart Attack

The death of Lindsey Warren Pierce, 54, widely known insurance man of Atlanta, who was found dead in bed Wednesday morning at his residence, 1024 Oglethorpe avenue, S. W., was owing to organic heart disease, it was decided by Coroner Paul Donehoo at an inquest held late Wednesday at the chapel of Sam Greenberg & Company.

Mr. Pierce came to Atlanta from Louisville, Ga., 20 years ago and had been connected with the Carolina Life Insurance Company for 17 years. Funeral arrangements will be announced on the return of his widow, who was visiting in Pittsburgh at the time of his death.

Besides his widow, Mr. Pierce is survived by a daughter, Mrs. William G. Murphy, two brothers, two sisters and a number of grandchildren.

Virginia Man Found Not Guilty of Murder

COVINGTON, Va., July 30.—(P)—A jury in the Allegheny circuit court deliberated an hour and 45 minutes this afternoon in reaching a verdict of not guilty in the case of John J. Canavan, charged with murder in connection with the death of W. K. Thompson on May 29.

Today's verdict ended the second trial of Canavan. In his previous trial a jury from Covington county was unable to agree. A Bedford county jury was summoned for the second hearing.

Mrs. Mattie Thompson, widow of the man allegedly slain, was indicted with Canavan, and was found guilty of first degree murder in her trial. She was sentenced to 20 years' imprisonment. Canavan was sentenced in the Thompson home. Thompson was found dead in bed on the night of May 29. His throat was slashed and there were numerous wounds about the body.

OAKLAND EXECUTIVE ADDRESSES DEALERS

W. A. Bles Discusses Retail Sales Business

W. A. Bles, vice president in charge of sales of the Oakland Motor Car Company, addressed a group of about 100 Oakland-Pontiac dealers and their bankers from various cities in Georgia, Alabama and eastern Tennessee, at the Biltmore hotel Wednesday.

The meeting, which was in the form of a luncheon, was held for the purpose of outlining to the dealers a number of important factors in the successful operation of a retail automobile sales business.

Financial stability, proper equipment, hard work, sound merchandising, scientific management and enthusiasm were stressed by Mr. Bles as being primary requisites of a balanced operation.

Several members of associated General Motors units were present at the meeting and were introduced to the dealers. Among those in the group of officials from the Oakland factory were B. U. Bathrick, Great Lakes regional manager, and Drew Brown, special representative for A. R. Glancy, Oakland president.

"Unemployment is not as significant as most people think," Mr. Bles stated. "Ordinarily about 40,000,000 people are employed in the United States, and even in the face of very poor business conditions there are only about 3,000,000 unemployed. Of these about half have no inclination to work. It seems that the comparatively small number of unemployed are talking about depression and hard times which has the effect of discouraging those who have jobs. Thus, we have created for ourselves essentially a buyers strike, but certainly it cannot continue in the face of present favorable trends back to normal."

Carpenter, himself, made the motion to rescind the former action of the committee, and it had the support of the committee. He failed to explain his reason for his change.

J. B. Buice, superintendence, was dropped from the force by a committee after he had faced a trial on charges of being in a drunken condition and committing inflammatory acts at a trial at the Fulton county courthouse on July 23.

Ed Crum, patrolman, has been reprimanded severely for an alleged incendiary speech he made at a recent meeting at the Georgia Avenue school. Chief Beavers reported to the committee. In addition, Crum was warned not to do so again, and promised that he would not.

Under a ruling of City Attorney James L. Mayson, an act of removing board which tests prospective policemen, are final in so far as the authority of the police committee is concerned.

Peace Has Its Victories No Less Than War—Science Robs Calomel of Its Nauseating and Dangerous Qualities—Calomel the New Name.

Here is good news for the sixteen hundred millions of people in the world who have livers to be cleansed, systems to be purified, and biliousness, constipation and indigestion to be corrected. Calomel has been robbed of its griping, nauseating and dangerous effects. Calomel the new name, makes calomel taking a pleasure.

In the future ask your druggist for Calomel, the de-nauseated calomel tablets. One tablet at bedtime, with a glass of water—that's all. No taste, no nausea or unpleasantness of any kind. You wake up in the morning feeling fine, with a hearty appetite. What more can you ask and go about your work. No danger.

Beware of imitations! Genuine Calomel are sold only in "checkerboard" (black and white) packages bearing the copyrighted trademark "Calomel." The large, family size sells for thirty-five cents; vest-pocket size, ten cents. All dealers are authorized to refund the price if you are not delighted with Calomel.—(adv.)

Why spend 60 hours a year scrubbing pots and pans?

Did you know the average housewife who uses old-style fuels for cooking spends sixty hours every year in scrubbing utensils? And what unpleasant work it is!

How many times annually do you take upon yourself the laborious task of laundering kitchen curtains and washing kitchen walls? With an Electric Range your kitchen will require less than half as much time to keep it clean.

Liquor Cases Fill Over Half Of Docket in Criminal Court

2,342 DURING YEAR, SOLICITOR REPORTS

Violations of the prohibition law dominated the cases in criminal court of Atlanta during the period from March 15, 1929, to January 1, 1930, according to a report released Wednesday by John S. McClelland, solicitor.

The report shows that of 4,516 cases during that time, 2,342 were for possession of whisky. Other charges were involved in the following number of cases: larceny, 425; driving an automobile while intoxicated, 243; assault and battery and stabbing, 227; carrying concealed weapons, 221; vagrancy, 184; gaming, 168; abandonment, 110; cheating and swindling, 83; and hobnobbing, 41. Other cases were classified as miscellaneous.

The principal number of persons haled into criminal court were between the ages of 22 and 32, the report shows. There were 838 between 16 and 21; 2,146 between 22 and 32; 895 between 33 and 43, and 673 over 43 years of age. Two hundred and forty-one were repeaters, and of these 213 were charged with violations of the prohibition law.

Sam Nichols formerly was employed by the Forsyth restaurant, the manager said Wednesday night. Nichols is well known in Greek and Assyrian circles here. He formerly lived in Miami and left only recently for the Florida city.

Rufus Bethea, of Birmingham, was elected commander of the Alabama Legion, at the closing session of the 1930 convention here today and Talladega was selected for the next meeting place. Bethea defeated Everett Jackson, of Montgomery, whose candidacy was sponsored by Gorgas post of Birmingham.

Montgomery, Ala., July 30.—(P)—Rufus Bethea, of Birmingham, was elected commander of the Alabama Legion, at the closing session of the 1930 convention here today and Talladega was selected for the next meeting place. Bethea defeated Everett Jackson, of Montgomery, whose candidacy was sponsored by Gorgas post of Birmingham.

Tree Kills Girl. SAN DIEGO, Calif., July 30.—(P)—Miss Dorothy Edwards, 19, paused a moment beside an old palm tree at the city plaza yesterday. Without warning the tree top broke away and fell upon her. She died from the injuries.

THEY WRITE "CLEANLINESS" —27 out of every 100 housewives*

That's what this group of Electric Range writers down as the first blessing—how many of them use the word!—of Electric Cookery.

In answering questionnaires in our recent Electric Range survey, 27 out of every 100 housewives (26.8%) list Cleanliness as the greatest benefit, out of the many benefits, of using an Electric Range. Others rank other benefits first. But these Georgia women said the advantage of cooking Electrically that pleased them most was Cleanliness. They had been able to "houseclean for good" when they installed their Electric Ranges!

Cleaner walls, floors and curtains . . . doing away forever with the tiresome, troublesome work of scrubbing pots and pans . . . forgetting the dirt, smoke, soot and bother of other fuels . . . making homes more spic and span and making it easier to keep them so—such are the advantages of using an Electric Range.

HEFLIN NEXT.

The democratic primary result in Texas puts a quietus on another party bolter whose defection in the presidential election caused the loss of his state.

The departures from party regularity in 1928 by which the electoral votes of Virginia, North Carolina, Florida and Texas were given to the Hoover ticket were caused by circumstances easy to understand, but highly improbable to occur again and arouse a hotly prejudiced resentment.

Virginia, at her first opportunity, swung strongly back to her old place in the democratic line. North Carolina followed with an emphatic refusal to endorse and reward the conduct of her veteran, Senator Simmons, in bolting the national ticket in 1928. Now comes Texas, challenged by a veteran democratic favorite, Senator Tom Love, who led the Hoovercrat revolt that registered Texas in the republican column, for the democratic nomination to the governorship. He pleaded his record as a militant dry and asked that his repudiation of Al Smith should be endorsed, but in an overwhelmingly dry state he ran fourth in a field of ten.

Thus does the whirlwind of time bring around the revenges of reason. Three big Hoovercrats have bit the dust in square test trials and the next on the list to taste the dregs of defeat is Senator Tom Hefflin, of Alabama. Denied the right to run in the democratic primary he is in the field for re-election as an independent, but there are no favorable signs in the Yallerhammer State that the people are more "independent" than they are solidly and stolidly democratic.

Hefflin seems well on the way to join Simmons and Love on the field outside the party breastworks.

Now the Nanking government is faced with a further dire threat in its home territory in the shape of communistic groups which, taking advantage of the sending of troops to the battle fronts, are murdering and pillaging.

Manchuria has solved its problem and is well on the way to prosperity and modern development. It may be that the new Peking government may be able to do the same thing for the northern provinces of China proper, and that the Nanking government, abandoning its dream of a great united country, could accomplish the rehabilitation of the southern provinces, and successfully put down the threat of communism.

In the meantime, the civilized nations of the world must continue to unceasingly watch developments.

The entire world wants to lend a helping hand, but the question of how best to do it is a knotty problem, the answer to which has not yet been discovered.

Mayor Walker says the motto of his administration in New York City is "courtesy." Most of his subordinates from Tammany ranks want to know what that thing is anyhow?

Street car fares in Washington City have been raised to 10 cents. Probably another case of Hoover prosperity.

Nadir Kahn is beginning to agree with that western cowboy's description of what life is, in Afghanistan the same as in Arizona.

Yeah, Billy Boy, the prehistoric man was the inventor of tree-sitting.

Pee-wee golf has become almost as popular as the well-known hip flask.

A man in Illinois eloped with his mother-in-law. The bug-house retriever is trying to rescue him.

THE WORLD'S WINDOW

BY PIERRE VAN PAASSEN

Through Rumania.

Looking at Europe from a train window is not exactly the correct way to study the habits and customs of the different nations and one is bound to remain in the dark on many important points, such as economics and culture, yet it has its advantages and its delights. Coming from Bucharest a few weeks ago, by easy stages across the south European steppes to Trieste, Milan, and hence to Paris, we became suddenly aware that the Rumanian and Julo-Slav peasants seem to work longer in the fields than any others in Europe. In summertime they don't go home even, but build a campfire near the covered wagon, where they have their evening meal. They are up and at it again with the first feeble rays of dawn. Shortly after the train on which we traveled, and which was not the Orient Express, passed out of Timosara station, there was a great ad and waving of hands on the part of workers in the field. The cause of the commotion became soon apparent. The train stopped, backed up and came to a halt near a thatched-out outhouse on a farm, where a spark of our locomotive had set on fire. Without any prompting the train crew and the passengers got out and helped to put out the flames. The damage to the building, didn't amount to a great deal. But many passengers had their shirts and suits ruined and blackened. Then the journey was resumed after a great deal of handshaking. The fields of Rumania were filled with peasants, the roads were black with soldiers. Columns of infantry, rattling artillery and large bodies of mounted men were marching and counter-marching as if there was a war going on somewhere in the Carpathians. The same applies to the neighboring Julo-Slavia. In Bucharest every soldier you meet practically is a soldier, or rather an officer. No country in Europe is so lavishly with gold braid and gauds. The army is everything. And no woman in Europe, not even the fashionable Black and White, is in the military club. The same Black and White is the smartest street east of Rome. The soldiers of Rumania are worn in Paris only by mannequins and for interior decoration come right out in the open on the flower-decked boulevards of the Rumanian capital. And no woman in Europe, not even the Parisiennes, can beat those of the Rumanian cities in elegance and natural grace. It is easily seen they are of the Latin tribe, with its sense of beauty and "savoir faire."

THE PROBLEM OF CHINA.

Developments of the past week in war-ridden, communism-stricken China emphasize the seriousness of the problem faced by the civilized nations of the world in deciding the proper attitude toward that unfortunate nation and its suffering millions of people.

Perhaps the most tragic aspect of the steady decline in China's fortunes during the centuries since its heyday of power and glory, has been the disintegration in its people of those qualities which in the early ages made them the most cultured and forward-looking nation of the world.

Now with China at the lowest ebb of its existence, only 4 per cent of its more than four hundred million people are literate. Poverty-stricken, famine and plague-swept, the great mass of the people are living in conditions of dumb suffering, seemingly incapable of rescuing themselves from their misery.

It had been hoped that with the foundation of the so-called democratic form of government, based upon the principles enunciated by the late Sun Yat Sen, a new era of progressive development would dawn. Instead the country under the Kuomintang regime has seen the few modern developments instituted by the royalist regime go steadily to rack and ruin, with nothing accomplished looking to the education or physical well being of the people. It would appear that the so-called "tutelage period" has been entirely barren of results.

Under the Manchu regime, China's great provinces were largely ruled by feudal war lords, subject to the throne but largely independent in their local governments. The inability to unify these chieftains under a stable, central government is the underlying cause for the failure of the Nanking government to retain peaceful control of the nation.

For some time the allegiance of Manchuria has been only nominal. Under the control of Chang Hsueh-liang, this great northern province has prospered while the rest of the nation has continued its downward course.

Within the past few months a confederation of war lords has set up a government at Peking and its armies are now at grips with the nationalist troops.

Now the Nanking government is faced with a further dire threat in its home territory in the shape of communistic groups which, taking advantage of the sending of troops to the battle fronts, are murdering and pillaging.

Manchuria has solved its problem and is well on the way to prosperity and modern development. It may be that the new Peking government may be able to do the same thing for the northern provinces of China proper, and that the Nanking government, abandoning its dream of a great united country, could accomplish the rehabilitation of the southern provinces, and successfully put down the threat of communism.

In the meantime, the civilized nations of the world must continue to unceasingly watch developments.

The entire world wants to lend a helping hand, but the question of how best to do it is a knotty problem, the answer to which has not yet been discovered.

Mayor Walker says the motto of his administration in New York City is "courtesy." Most of his subordinates from Tammany ranks want to know what that thing is anyhow?

THE WORLD'S WINDOW

BY PIERRE VAN PAASSEN

Through Rumania.

Looking at Europe from a train window is not exactly the correct way to study the habits and customs of the different nations and one is bound to remain in the dark on many important points, such as economics and culture, yet it has its advantages and its delights. Coming from Bucharest a few weeks ago, by easy stages across the south European steppes to Trieste, Milan, and hence to Paris, we became suddenly aware that the Rumanian and Julo-Slav peasants seem to work longer in the fields than any others in Europe. There Will Be No More Dancing Until the Fiddler Is Paid

By Robert Quillen

Whether you are rich or poor, old or young, your future welfare depends in some degree upon a correct understanding of the economic depression that now troubles the civilized world.

If it is a depression that will pass quickly, you can safely assume debts and plan expansions.

If business cannot "boom" again for several years, you must sail close to shore.

In either case your safety depends on knowing the truth, and the only way to determine the probable duration of a period of depression is to discover what caused it.

Economic experts offer many explanations, all of them possibly true in some measure, but the chief cause is a simple one any layman can understand.

The simple old law of supply and demand makes prices, and prices make prosperity.

Normally, supply and demand remain very much the same, the producer growing or manufacturing just enough to supply the consumer's demand.

If he produces too little, demand makes prices high and induces him to make up the shortage; if he produces too much, his unsold surplus represents a loss and he curtails production.

Thus the law maintains a nice and profitable balance.

But the "boom times" of recent years have broke the law, and when a law is broken somebody must suffer.

Instead of consuming in one year the goods they could pay for with that year's earnings, the people mortgaged their future.

They spent next year's earnings for goods consumed this year and thus made their consuming power seem twice as great as it was in fact.

The producers were fooled.

They said to themselves: "These people are richer than we thought. We must double production to meet their demands."

And they built greater plants to satisfy a consuming capacity that was wholly imaginary.

That is the whole story.

Now the people are catching up with their debts and the producers have a great surplus they cannot sell.

Japan's crop of cocoons is the greatest in history and silk begs for a market at $3.60 a pound.

The world's excess stock of rubber exceeds 400,000 tons and the price is down to 13 cents.

Brazil is storing an enormous surplus of coffee and the price has fallen to 9 cents.

There is too much cotton, wheat, sugar, steel, copper—too much of everything except the gold that must pay for it.

And business cannot "boom" again until the world consumes the surplus that a fictitious prosperity tempted it to produce.

You must eat your peanuts before you can have any more.

HOLLYWOOD IN PERSON

BY MOLLIE MERRICK

HOLLYWOOD, Cal., July 30.—When it is a good thing, it is a good thing. When it is a bad thing, it is a bad thing. When it is a good thing, it is a good thing. When it is a bad thing, it is a bad thing.

The Russian case is once again awakening to life. Lawrence Tibbett's picture is Russian in type, and Milton Sills is engaged on a Russian picture.

Cossacks and moujiks and ikons and what-nots always seem to go well with a picture of a Russian type. But this time it is not familiar. Westerners still going strong is another evidence of this trend in public taste.

Mrs. Patrick Campbell made up her mind to make a late afternoon raid to the voters of Wheeler county, and from there was scheduled to go to Waycross for a speech tonight.

At the present time she is the most talked-of woman in the colony. She has floored everyone from Harold Lloyd to Charles Chaplin, and Belinda Daniels down. Her favorite trick is to inquire of the most famous if they are in pictures or are civilians. A few have managed the retort delicious in spite of their surprise. But nine times out of ten she is scoring by her sheer effrontery and the superb quality of her attack. Movie-land is a scene of confusion. What gets them is the thought that after all these years of stardom and idolization they could possibly remain unknown to anyone.

And what they have not seen apparently, is the fact that this is a deliberate move on the part of a woman who is determined to win the world over who is determined not to remain unknown in gold coat circles. She is at present on the Fox lot with the full panoply of a star being lavished on her.

One way of investigating the non-employment situation is to quit work.

They've speeded up traffic with the ginger system. . . . They've made it stagger much quicker. . . . The dregs have to win by steady pressure. . . . The wets will depend on three things: the movement of the market, the real bright boys who don't let take over the executives of the Bethlehem Steel Company. . . . Well, at least Ma Ferguson is doing for her husband and kiddies. . . . We do not believe that members of the house of commons get drunk on duty. . . . They are simply intoxicated with pow-wows.

But I'll say it if I deem it necessary.

Day by day my own list of specialists who are in demand is growing. Faster and faster they're "accepting" the new method. The erudite but impractical medical journal editors might as well command the waves to recede.

Surgical diathermy is widely employed in urology, in the cosmetic operations of dermatology, in the treatment of otherwise inoperable and recurring cancer, in the removal of brain tumor and other brain operations, and in gynecological operations, by the foremost men in the profession.

QUESTIONS AND ANSWERS.

A New Wrinkle in Quick Business.

If you doctor to you that your boy had "cancer of the blood" and that the only hope for him was a serum that costs $100,000, you would be a doctor.

Answer: My doctor would try to put anything like that over on me. If he did I'd kick him down stairs and file charges with the state board of medical examiners with a view to having his license revoked. Only scoundrels exploit that alleged cancer serum. If your boy is really ill, for heaven's sake quit fooling with fakery and give him the benefit of medical advice by calling a reputable physician.

'SELF-EULOGY' LAID

TO HARRIS D. SLATOR

Claims Senator Wrote Article About Himself Read Into Record by Trammell.

BAXLEY, Ga., July 30.—(Special.) "Brazen self-eulogy" was charged to Senator William J. Harris by his opponent, former Governor John M. Slator, in an address here this afternoon to an audience of citizens representing Appling and adjoining counties.

"Having exhausted all other methods of self-eulogy his ingenuity could devise," said Mr. Slator, "Senator Harris recently wrote a lengthy and enthusiastic account of his service in the senate, and had his friend and colleague, Senator Trammell, of Florida, read it into the congressional record of July 21. The inference was that the article was the product of the pen of Senator Trammell, and in fairness to him I will state that he did not specifically claim authorship of it, when he introduced it into the record."

"If Senator Trammell had taken the trouble to read the article, which nobody can blame him for not doing, he would have found in it a severe denunciation of the Grundy tariff recently enacted. Inasmuch as Senator Trammell voted for the Grundy tariff, he might have asked Senator Harris to read it into the record."

"Writing about himself in the third person, which is rare performance, Senator H. makes the statement in this Harris-Trammell deliverance that 'Harris holds a higher place on the powerful appropriations committee than any Georgian ever held, and through the rule of seniority he hopes to become chairman.' Further on he says: 'Senator Harris, in his position on the appropriations committee places upon him a responsibility he has not shirked, to scrutinize personally every appropriation proposed.'"

"I am glad Senator Harris took the trouble to write the point which I have contended. That is, that Senator Harris for ten years has occupied a position where he might have exerted a powerful influence for economy in governmental appropriations. Instead of doing that, he has voted for total appropriations in the order of approximately fifty-five billion dollars, and never once has raised his voice against the huge expenditures that are increasing annually at the rate of five hundred million dollars."

"Governmental expenditures are responsible for high taxes, and high taxes are responsible for hard times. Not hard times way off yonder, but hard times right here in Appling county and all over Georgia."

"After speaking here Mr. Slator left for Albany for a late afternoon raid to the voters of Wheeler county, and from there was scheduled to go to Waycross for a speech tonight."

Fishing Industry Discussed by Perry

BRUNSWICK, Ga., July 30.—(Special.)—James A. Perry, speaking here tonight in the interest of his candidacy for the nomination for governor, devoted a considerable part of his address to the needs and possibilities of the fishing industry of the state. The average well-informed Georgian, he said, has no idea of the commercial possibilities of the fishing industry and declared himself strongly in favor of increased state aid in its development. He commended the wonderful work that has been done in bringing the attention of tourists to the scenic beauties of the state. He said that it had been of great benefit to the entire state.

Reverting to politics Mr. Perry said: "When any private business finds that its overhead has been allowed to increase until it is unable to pay its bills, that overhead is promptly reduced. It is the same with a state. It must do the same. Many people do not want to sell to the state; if they do they add a comfortable percentage to the care of the delay in payment."

"Every dollar of state money that can legally be used for the payment of bills existing should be used for that purpose. Georgia's credit should be re-established, and if I am elected governor I promise you that at no time will the appropriations for the general assembly ever exceed the state's income."

"My record as a public servant is well known. Most people know that I have held the position of secretary of the state for many years. I have given to the smaller communities of the state the same freight, power and light rates that are enjoyed in the larger centers. They know of the part I have played in the recent improvements on the state's railroad property in Atlanta, which has already increased the value of that property by four million dollars. They know, too, that every one of my opponents in this race have adopted as their own many of the planks in my platform, arising long in advance."

"Mr. Russell, the young lad who is trying to effect a combination of the executive and judicial branches of the government, thinks so well of my proposal to abolish school books at cost or free, that he is demanding that his opponents state their position on that question. Why don't Mr. Russell, who was speaker of the last house and claimed to be a champion of the people, in that body, explain why the appropriations were allowed to be so much greater than the income out of which they were to be paid could be possibly be?"

Combines Attacked In Speech by Rivers

BOWDON, Ga., July 30.—(Special.)—There is a law on the statute books of the state of Georgia, said candidate for governor, E. D. Rivers, addressing a large gathering here this afternoon, which, if the law is closely invoked it, would prevent consolidations or combines of powerful business interests to the detriment of the independent merchant. I will use this law to protect the people from domination by mergers of interests through centralization of wealth and power."

Rivers declared that practically all the other candidates had adopted his platform for which he waged the lone fight two years ago. He said that a man who had to seek office on a platform which someone else originated would have to have someone else help him act as governor.

"All of the candidates, except Mr. Carwell, have adopted my plank on tax reform. Mr. Carwell says he is satisfied with the tax laws as they stand. That statement alone, will defeat him, even if the incompetent Harlan administration was not found around his neck and stamped indelibly upon him."

The candidate for governor spoke this morning at Carrollton, where he promised relief for school children awaiting back pay and that he

Leaders of Atlanta Bar

Rally to Judge Humphries

GORE AND WRIGHTSMAN IN OKLAHOMA RUN-OFF

Organization of a strong club to support Judge John B. Humphries, senior presiding officer of Fulton superior court, in his fight for re-election, Wednesday afternoon at the Ansley hotel was featured by tributes paid Judge Humphries by outstanding members of the Atlanta bar.

Among those who urged Judge Humphries' re-election on the strength of his record were Marion S. Williams, William Schley Howard, Reuben R. Arnold, Jere A. Wells and Mark Bolding.

Mr. Smith, who called the meeting to order, on behalf of the committee of bar members, expressed his deep interest in doing anything he can to forward Judge Humphries' re-election, and said: "I feel that the people of Fulton county owe it to themselves to retain a man of Judge Humphries' character and record on the bench."

Mr. Smith said he believes that every man and woman in the county who stands for good government and law and order ought to support Judge Humphries.

Mr. Smith said he did not desire to criticize Judge Humphries' opponent, C. K. Jordan. He pointed out that Judge Humphries' record is made, and that he is diligent, fair and impartial, and is an absolutely fearless lawyer, and that he is a man of high character and high ability. Judge Humphries is a man of high character and high ability. Judge Humphries is a man of high character and high ability.

Mr. Howard, who saw service as special prosecutor in the city graft cases, said that he spoke for Solicitor-General John A. Boykin and himself in declaring Judge Humphries one of the fairest, most impartial and capable judges in the history of the state. He urged the people to support Judge Humphries 100 per cent. Mr. Howard said:

"The Soul of Honor." Mr. Howard referred to the "magnificent record of your senior judge" and said that "he is the soul of honor and the soul of the law. His word is his bond, and he is a man of high character and high ability. Judge Humphries is a man of high character and high ability. Judge Humphries is a man of high character and high ability."

Mr. Bolding, of Howell, Heyman and Bolding, and a former assistant attorney general of Georgia, said that every citizen desired good government and good laws properly enforced. "No office is more important to all the citizens of Georgia," he said, "than the office of a judge. There is no reason anyone can offer for displacing him."

DAY IN FINANCE

By
R. L. BARNUM

World's Richest Men Who Direct United States Steel Assets That Their Company Will Show Gains for the Last Quarter of the Year.

NEW YORK, July 30.—George F. Baker, Sr., J. P. Morgan, Thomas F. Lamont, James C. Farrell, George F. Baker, Jr., Percival Roberts, Jr., Nathan L. Miller, W. J. Hilbert, Myron C. Taylor make up the finance committee of the United States Steel Corporation. These men, outstanding in industry and finance, made the statement yesterday in giving out the Steel Corporation's quarterly earnings that indications in the steel industry point to an increase for the remainder of this quarter in the present 63 per cent of capacity production with improvement the last quarter of the year.

In its early morning letter to customers one of the largest stock exchange houses "expressed the feeling of the street by saying that the statement by the finance committee of the Steel Corporation was "the best stock market letter of the day."

Steel common, however, was down 3 1/4 points by noon when selling pressure ceased, with Can down 2, Vanadium 3 1/2 and other leaders from 1 to 3 points.

What happened was that after a higher opening the stock market ran into trouble with the bears then coming in. The finance committee of the United States Steel Corporation it was not ready to follow any leadership on the bull side. Heading this conclusion the bears pounded the stock market successfully.

The best opinion in Wall Street is that while the views of the finance committee of the Steel Corporation were disappointing stock marketwise for the immediate future, these views will prove correct for the longer look ahead.

Few Strong Spots. But in the meantime it must be admitted that the market meets stock on strong spots. Three times within the past two weeks the average price of industrials has reached or gone through the high made since the recovery started on July 8 only to decline on selling pressure.

The weekly review of the steel trade by the Iron Age failed to confirm the views expressed by the finance committee of the Steel Corporation. This recognized spokesman for the steel trade said that rail business stands out as the only new element in the iron and steel situation, the Van Sverdrup having ordered 58,000 tons of rails with Reading expected to order 35,000 tons, Pennsylvania 180,000 and New York Central 200,000. However, it was added:

"The only immediate effect of hastening rail buying would be to improve business sentiment, since the railroads are behind in their specifications against present contracts. Outside of prospective support from the carriers there is nothing in the current state of iron and steel demand that offers any definite clue as to the future. The steel still voices its belief that improvement is near, but with concrete evidence of increasing activity lacking, makes no prophecy as to the extent of recovery."

It was added that the extension of "vacations" among consuming plants and the announcement of fresh suspensions by companies that have been operating through this month indicate that the stimulus from industrial resumption may not be felt until the middle or end of August.

Ford Plant Vacations. Rumors were circulated that Ford, which shut down for two weeks and then extended a "vacation" for another week to August 4, might continue closed for the fourth week. Detroit denied these rumors, stating that Ford had just advertised in the local papers notifying its men that the plants would be opened August 4.

A well known trade paper will publish a symposium tomorrow including statements from presidents of 25 of the country's largest corporations including Ford, General Motors, Chrysler, and others, regarding the steel situation.

The best opinion in Wall Street is that while the views of the finance committee of the Steel Corporation were disappointing stock marketwise for the immediate future, these views will prove correct for the longer look ahead.

107,000 for the first half of the year came from China, Japan and South America. All three of these countries have bought more goods from us than they shipped to us and making settlement in gold.

Largest Change. The net gain of $222,534,000 made by us in the first half of this year is the largest change for this period occurring since 1928, when our net loss was $372,542,000. For the first half of 1927 we added $131,501,000 net to our gold holdings; for 1928 $81,385,000. For the first half of 1929 we lost $150,293,000 and for that same period in 1924 we gained $222,357,000.

In the two first half years out of the last seven that we lost gold, artificial conditions were created to help along after-war stabilization of currency. In the first half of 1925 we were sending gold to England; for the first half of 1928 we were sending it to France to help stabilize the franc.

It was just at this time in 1927 that foreign bankers held a conference here in London to arrange for gold shipments to Paris, which continued during the first half of 1928, or until we had shipped over $500,000,000. To make these shipments possible the federal reserve bank forced the Chicago federal reserve bank to take the lead in a movement to bring about a country-wide downward readjustment in the rediscount rate. This was followed by a period of artificially easy money which speculative Wall Street was quick to take advantage of. That was the beginning of the speculative craze that got out of hand and ended last October. Very different conditions exist today.

Liverpool Cotton. LIVERPOOL, July 30.—Cotton, spot quiet; prices lower. American strict good middling 5.63; good middling 5.54; strict low middling 5.45; good low middling 5.36; ordinary 5.27; American Receipts 13,000; American 3,000.

For the half year ended with June we made a net gain of $222,534,000 gold, shipping out $9,663,000 and getting in $222,067,000, according to the figures recently given out at Washington. Most of the $9,663,000 exports went to France in the first month of the year, after which no gold crossed the Atlantic until exports to France were recently resumed. Practically all of the imports of $222,067,000 came from China, Japan and South America.

Discounts of the Federal Reserve Bank of Atlanta. The bank of Atlanta declined in June, the report set forth, but increased somewhat the first part of July, and loans of weekly reporting member banks in selected cities of the district were less on July 9 than for any other weekly report date in more than five years. Borrowings by those weekly reporting member banks, it is added, were less than on July 9 at the same time a year ago.

Atlanta was not the only reporting city included in the report which recorded a decline in retail, wholesale and building activities. The review says of the entire district:

"Retail trade declined in June compared with preceding months and was at the lowest level recorded for June of any year since 1922. For the first half of 1936 department store sales in this district averaged 5.4 per cent less than during the same part of 1929. The volume of wholesale trade in eight reporting lines combined was smaller in June than for any other month in the year. Sales during the first half of the year have been 10.7 per cent less than during the first six months of 1929. Collections in July for both retail and wholesale trade were less than in May or in June a year ago."

Drought Hinder Farming. Agriculture in this section of the country was generally affected by the drought, according to the report, which says in part:

"The acreage in cotton in the six states of the district combined is about the same as last year, according to the first cotton report of the season issued by the United States department of agriculture. The July estimates of cotton, wheat, oats, hay, white potatoes, sugar and rice indicate smaller crops in this district than in 1929, but estimates of tobacco, peaches and apples indicate increases."

Figures given for retail trade comparisons obtained from five department stores in Atlanta show that during the first half of this year sales were 14.5 per cent smaller than in May and 9 per cent less than in June of last year.

Wholesale sales of groceries in Atlanta were 14.8 per cent smaller in June than in May; dry goods was 26.6 per cent fewer for the same monthly comparison, while furniture sales were 11.2 per cent smaller.

3 Gulf Ship Lines Are Consolidated

WASHINGTON, July 30.—(AP)—Consolidation of three gulf steamship services into the new Southern States line which will be operated by the Lykes Brothers-Ripley Steamship Company, of New Orleans, for a lump sum of $7,750 a voyage instead of a percentage of the gross receipts, was announced today by the shipping board.

Under the new arrangement, the Southern States line will combine the services of the Lykes Brothers-Ripley Steamship Company, of New Orleans, the Mississippi Valley European, the Texas Star and the former Southern States Lines. Thirty-five ships will be operated between Gulf of Mexico ports west of Gulfport, Miss., and continental Europe.

The new combination was the first step in the shipping board's plan to consolidate seven government-owned lines into three new lines to decrease competition between the various services, stimulate business and decrease operating costs.

GENERAL GAS OFFERS HUGE BOND ISSUE

An issue of $50,000,000 General Gas & Electric Corporation 4 1/2 per cent, and 5 per cent serial gold notes maturing August 15, 1931 to 1935, inclusive, is being offered today by a group headed by Harris, Forbes & Hallock, Inc., including Hallock, Stuart & Co., Inc.; Chase Securities Corporation, and Chatham Phenix Corporation. These notes are priced to yield 5 1/2 per cent to 6 per cent, according to maturity. The corporation has no funded debt except this issue of serial gold notes, current indebtedness incurred in the ordinary course of business and a small amount payable to holders of called securities not yet presented for payment. The notes are followed by preferred and common stocks of the corporation having a combined present market value of more than $135,000,000.

Net earnings of the corporation as of June 30, 1936, are on a pro rata basis and interest rates on the securities owned by the corporation but no including dividends paid in the form of stock are over 3.3 times the minimum interest charges of $2,425,000 on this issue of serial gold notes.

Cottonseed Oil. NEW YORK, July 30.—Cottonseed oil was fairly active and after being barely steady most of the day, it rose in sympathy with cotton, stocks and grains, ignoring the decline in land. The bid for cotton changed to 15 points lower and new 5 points to 5 net higher. Sales were 3,200 bushels, including 2,300 of old and 900 of new contracts. Prime crude 7.00; prime summer yellow 7.00; September 8.00; October 8.02; December 8.07; new December 7.45; January 7.90; March 7.70.

NEW ORLEANS. NEW ORLEANS, July 30.—Cottonseed oil futures were active today in sympathy with the decline in cotton and crude oil. Prime summer yellow oil closed at 7.25, down 15 points and prime crude closed at 6.25, down 8.50. Futures closed easy; August 7.25; September 7.28; October 8.02; December 8.07; January 7.90; March 7.70.

Dry Goods. NEW YORK, July 30.—Cotton goods markets were more active today and better sales in print cloths were made. Some goods were 1-8 off and some 1-4 off for some fair quantities of rayon and cotton mixtures were current and interest in fine goods generally improved. The hosiery market was quiet. Flannels and lightweight worsted shirtings were being sold in fair quantities. Spot shirtings were weaker and quiet.

New York Bank Statement. NEW YORK, July 30.—Clearing house statement: Exchange $1,003,000,000. Balances $144,000,000.

COTTON TRADE
SHOWS SHARP DECLINE

The minus symbol in comparative statistics dealing with the trend of business during June in Atlanta and the rest of the southeast comprising the federal reserve district comprising largely in the official monthly review of the Atlanta Federal Reserve bank, released today.

Ret trade in this and other cities in the district, as well as wholesale transactions, were lower in virtually every instance than those recorded for the previous month, and an even greater degree of decline was noted for June this year as against the same month last year.

In Atlanta, while the number of business transactions was slightly larger than those issued during June, 1929, the percentage change in total value of such activities was a decline of 14.5 per cent in 1929, or 68.3 per cent decline. During the month of June 1922 permits were issued in Atlanta, representing a value of $1,319,838.

Discounts of the Federal Reserve Bank of Atlanta declined in June, the report set forth, but increased somewhat the first part of July, and loans of weekly reporting member banks in selected cities of the district were less on July 9 than for any other weekly report date in more than five years.

Borrowings by those weekly reporting member banks, it is added, were less than on July 9 at the same time a year ago.

Atlanta was not the only reporting city included in the report which recorded a decline in retail, wholesale and building activities. The review says of the entire district:

"Retail trade declined in June compared with preceding months and was at the lowest level recorded for June of any year since 1922. For the first half of 1936 department store sales in this district averaged 5.4 per cent less than during the same part of 1929. The volume of wholesale trade in eight reporting lines combined was smaller in June than for any other month in the year. Sales during the first half of the year have been 10.7 per cent less than during the first six months of 1929. Collections in July for both retail and wholesale trade were less than in May or in June a year ago."

Drought Hinder Farming. Agriculture in this section of the country was generally affected by the drought, according to the report, which says in part:

"The acreage in cotton in the six states of the district combined is about the same as last year, according to the first cotton report of the season issued by the United States department of agriculture. The July estimates of cotton, wheat, oats, hay, white potatoes, sugar and rice indicate smaller crops in this district than in 1929, but estimates of tobacco, peaches and apples indicate increases."

Figures given for retail trade comparisons obtained from five department stores in Atlanta show that during the first half of this year sales were 14.5 per cent smaller than in May and 9 per cent less than in June of last year.

Wholesale sales of groceries in Atlanta were 14.8 per cent smaller in June than in May; dry goods was 26.6 per cent fewer for the same monthly comparison, while furniture sales were 11.2 per cent smaller.

BURGESS CHILDREN'S STORIES

JIM CROW RECEIVES VISITORS.

BY THORNTON BURGESS.

The sulky are in state of mind. Temptation dearly loves to find.

—Old Mother Nature.

Jim Crow was in disgrace. His master having found the stolen clothespins had to admit Jim Crow's guilt. Therefore, Jim Crow had to be punished. So for two whole days he was shut up in a pen in the barn.

"I surely don't suppose," said Farmer Brown's Boy, "that Jim understands he is being punished, but just the same I am going to punish him. He is probably wondering what it is all about. One thing is certain, and that is that he will have to be shut up on wash day. It won't do to have him pulling the clothespins and dropping the washing on the ground again."

When after a couple of days Jim Crow was once more given his liberty, he was very much out of sorts. He scolded Farmer Brown's Boy roundly. Farmer Brown's Boy chuckled. "I wish I could understand what he is saying," said he. "I presume he is telling me just what he thinks about me."

Having given his master a thorough scolding, Jim Crow went off by himself and sulked. Farmer Brown's Boy went down to the corralled to join his father at work there. Jim Crow didn't go along as usual. His master tried to coax him down, but Jim refused. He just sulked. He flew up on the ridge of the barn and continued to sulk.

It was while he was up there that Blacky the Crow, his father, and also his mother, some of his brothers and sisters, and a lot of their friends, came flying over. They saw Jim Crow sitting on the ridgepole of the barn and they also saw that no one was about. So they decided to pay Jim Crow a visit. Presently that whole flock of Crows was gathered on the barn and other buildings. They were very quiet. Blacky alighted beside his long lost son and began to talk to him in a low tone. He was urging Jim Crow to join the flock and go back to the Green Forest with them.

Jim Crow's mother flew to the other side of him and she also began to talk. The other Crows looked on and said nothing. Jim Crow said nothing. But Blacky and Mrs. Blacky said enough for all the rest. At first Jim Crow was a little frightened. You see, he didn't know that Blacky and Mrs. Blacky were his father and mother. It had been so long since he fell from the nest and was found by Farmer Brown's Boy, and he had been so young at the time, that he just didn't remember his parents. Of course, he didn't remember his brothers and sisters and he never had known any of the other crows. So he was rather afraid of all these black strangers.

Probably if he hadn't been feeling sulky and out of sorts, he wouldn't have listened to what they had to say. But he couldn't forget how he had been shut up for two days. No, sir, he just couldn't forget that. If he should go with these folks of his own kind, he never again would be shut up. Presently, some of the other

Crows began to urge him to join the flock. It sounded as if it would be very wonderful to go off with these black companions of his own kind and be free to do as he pleased. It didn't occur to him that he was free and had been free right along.

Finally, at a signal, all the Crows took to their wings, all calling to him to come with them. Then they headed for the Green Forest. It was more than Jim Crow could resist. "Caw, Caw, Caw!" he cried. The flock turned and came back. Jim Crow spread his wings. Two minutes later he was on his way to the Green Forest.

economical operation of General Electric Refrigerators

To safeguard the family's health, the modern woman demands wholesome appetizing food, proper refrigeration—electric refrigeration.

Proper refrigeration is obtained only when food is kept constantly at the proper temperature—well below 50 degrees. You may be sure of that safeguard with the General Electric Refrigerator.

It gives years of quiet and economical service. Its sturdy construction is all-steel. It provides generous food storage space and all the ice cubes you desire. And so economically! It costs but a few cents a day to operate.

The mechanism in the Monitor Top is hermetically sealed—thoroughly protected from air, dirt and moisture. Examine these refrigerators today and remember that any model may be yours for a small amount down and the balance on convenient time payments.

Many States Suffering Under Worst Drouth

Georgia, However, Has Had Sufficient Rain To Save Crops From Damage.

While the rest of the country is suffering under the worst drouth ever recorded, Georgia has received enough rain, scattered generally over the entire state, not only to keep its crops from suffering but, on the whole, for such seasonable periods as to lead forecasters to believe the state is headed for a bumper crop of tobacco and cotton.

Early in the year a dry spell in south Georgia caused a good many watermelons to sunburn and a little later the same crop suffered from hail storm damage but, on the whole, the yield and the quality more than met the expectations of the growers. The price, alone, has resulted in some strenuous kicking.

Parts of north Georgia, which failed to receive rain when it was most needed, will probably suffer a slight loss in the yield of yellow corn but the cotton crop will turn out normal, experts agree.

WORST DROUGHT EVER RECORDED.
WASHINGTON, July 30.—(AP)—The searing drought which has been months has baked large areas between the Rocky Mountains and the Appalachians was listed today as the worst the country has experienced since statewide weather records began.

J. B. Kincer, meteorologist of the department of agriculture, described it as unparalleled in the records which reach back 40 or 50 years. Farmers who have watched their crop wither under almost unprecedented temperature deficiencies, particularly corn, pastures and fall truck crops, received no encouragement. The forecast division of the weather bureau said no relief was in sight for several days more at least.

"Every additional day without rain," Kincer said, "notwithstanding cooler weather, necessarily will further reduce crop prospects."

Winter wheat harvest, however, is nearing completion without appreciable damage. Considerable deterioration to the late spring wheat was reported, but harvesting of the early crop is well advanced.

Cotton has suffered in some sections. The drought has existed in some states since last December, in others since March and in still others the dry weather began in the growing months of June and July.

In addition to the scanty rainfall in July, increasing drought conditions already prevalent over large areas, three extremely hot waves followed to intensify them.

During July, temperatures of 100 degrees or higher were reported on four to six days in the middle Atlantic area and from six to as many as 15 days from the northern portions of Alabama, Mississippi, Louisiana, and northeastern Texas northward over the Ohio and Mississippi valleys and plains states to eastern South Dakota.

While cooler weather now prevailing throughout most of the dry area will check the rapid deterioration of unmaturing crops, a generous and general rain is necessary for widespread improvement.

Corn has been particularly hard hit in some sections. The abnormally high temperatures and lack of moisture has prevented the pollenization essential to production.

in June and July as against the next lowest record of 4.5 inches in 1924.

SOUTHERN CROPS FACE HEAVY LOSSES.
MEMPHIS, Tenn., July 30.—(AP)—Withering drought faced southern farmers with serious losses today. Cotton, the mainstay of many a 10-acre rented farm and great plantation, bloomed prematurely, and dropped useless from the stalks in some areas, while others it appeared to have survived so far.

Corn, hay, tobacco, garden products, rice, pasture lands and live stock all shared in the adverse conditions reported from states hit hardest. Official reports by states follow:

Kentucky—Corn and oats were estimated to be 50 per cent off the normal prospective yield. Pastures were dry, and in the farmer's term, "gone." Tobacco suffered, but appeared to have a chance at recovery if long-awaited rains fall soon. Wheat was normal and in good condition.

Tennessee—All corn except that of the latest harvest was destroyed. The last stands possibly could be saved by rain within a short time. Vegetables suffered greatly. Hay was hard hit.

Mississippi—The rich delta counties faced a possible 50 per cent cut in effective cotton production. Delta corn and hay were even worse sufferers. South of the delta, cotton showed little damage while hay and truck fields showed plain signs of the drought's ravages.

Louisiana—All crops were reduced but cotton seemed to have had little serious damage.

Arkansas—The Stuttgart Chamber of Commerce, in the heart of the rice growing area, estimated that between 50,000 and 100,000 acres planted in territory near there, only 85,000 or 90,000 acres are being watered. Rice fields are flooded from wells. Sustained heat caused evaporation and dry wells. The reports estimated variously that between 10 and 30 per cent of the acreage had been abandoned. Hay, corn and other crops suffered elsewhere in the state.

Alabama—Corn growers had the prospect of heavily curtailed harvests. As a whole, the state reported "fair to poor" conditions. Cotton was said to have escaped with only a scattering loss.

Georgia—Southern counties lost part of the corn crop. Peaches, a big item in the state, benefited from the delayed blooming which attended the drought.

In some sections the drought found no recent precedent. Passing its seventy-third day here, three more days would equal the record. Little Rock and the adjacent section of Arkansas had been without heavy rain for 88 days.

Generally, the account was: "Rain's been away so long it's bound to hurt. If it will come soon, things may not be so bad."

Cohens and Kellsy At Empire Today
If there is anything funnier than a "Cohen and Kelly" it is another "Cohen and Kelly." The famous Irish-Jewish comedy troupe, George Sidney, Charlie Murray, Vera Gordon and Kate Price, is the Empire theater, corner of Georgia avenue and Crew street, today on their fourth fun-making excursion. This time they appear as "The Cohens and Kellsy in Scotland," and will leave undone in the way of mirth provocation isn't worth mentioning.

Marie Dressler and Polly Moran, co-starred in the all-talking comedy, "Caught Short," giving an amusing side of the recent stock market crash, has been booked by Manager Alpha Fowler as his screen feature on Friday. An added feature will be the showing of another episode of the railroad serial, "The Lightning Express."

Dances Upon Hands As Well as Feet
Toots Novelle, featured dancer of the Frauman and Marco "Overtures" idea, now playing at the Fox theater, is just as comfortable on his hands as the average person is on his feet. Novelle springs lightly to his hands from almost any posture and retains his balance with no apparent effort, and keeps time perfectly with his band accompaniment. He says this is a feat to him after years of practice since extremely youthful days. Another unusual feature on the "Overtures" idea is the juggling act of the Dupletons.

"Good Intentions," the Fox Movie-tone feature picture, features Edmund Lowe in a different kind of part to those with which he has been identified for several years. In this he is a gentleman crook with an aesthetic leaning. He is admirably supported by Marguerite Churchill, Regis Toomey, Owen Davis, Jr., and Earle Foxe.

Idaho Population Totals 473,440
BOISE, Idaho, July 30.—(AP)—Census bureau figures compiled by the Associated Press today gave Idaho a total population of 473,440, an increase over 1920 of 5,574, or 1.23 per cent.

The total included a preliminary estimate for Valley View, with a population set tentatively at 3,518. Returns from two precincts of this mountainous and sparsely settled county have not yet been received. Its population in 1920 was 2,524.

Rebuilding Begins In Earthquake Area
ROME, July 30.—(AP)—New cities today began to show their modern outlines among the ruins of last week's stricken earthquake area.

Supported by government and other funds running into the millions, thousands of workers today began digging the trenches in which will rest the foundations of a reconstructed, and it is planned, virtually shock-proof group of Apennine towns. In most cases these will be removed from the perilous mountain peaks and crater rims upon which they formerly sat.

Melfi, Canosa, Villanova, Arcadina, Montecro, Ariano, Lacedonia, Aquilona and many other centers saw the beginning of the ambitious program by which the government will attempt to insure so far as possible the lives of these Italian subjects who cling to their beloved vineyard hills in which in all modern times has lurked the menace of destruction.

Searchers in the ruins have also ceased to find bodies of dead. Only five were found today.

A part of today's task was the searching out of orphans and children whose parents have been scattered far from their homes.

SLAYER OF CAROLINIAN NAMES INSTIGATOR

COLUMBIA, S. C., July 30.—(AP)—A coroner's jury tonight heard W. L. Thornley, 35-year-old World War veteran, testify under oath that he fatally shot State Senator E. J. Dennis, of Berkeley county, last Thursday in the investigation of Glenn D. McKnight, former federal prohibition agent.

After hearing Thornley's testimony, the inquest was adjourned, to be resumed at Monck's Corner, Berkeley county seat, upon the call of Solicitor A. J. Hydrick, prosecutor in charge of the inquiry into the assassination of Dennis, the political boss of his county.

McKnight, one-time bootleg magnate of the Hell Hole swamp region of Berkeley, was lodged in the state penitentiary here tonight. He was arrested early in the afternoon in a Charleston hospital.

Three other Berkeley county men, said by Governor Richards to have been implicated in Thornley's confession, were lodged in state prison early today. They are Fred Artis, Clarence Woodward, a former deputy sheriff, and Curtis Thornley, brother of the alleged assassin.

Senator Dennis was shot down on a street of Monck's Corner, the county seat, last Thursday while conversing with two friends. He died the next day in a Charleston hospital. He was the fourth recent victim of an ambush in Berkeley county, scene of intense political and liquor feuds in recent years. McKnight was the last previous victim, having been shot down in the yard of his Monck's Corner home two weeks ago, by a change of buckshot fired from the darkness. He was critically wounded.

Atlanta Prohibs Celebrate 23 Years of Dry Georgia

More Than 500 Members of Georgia W. C. T. U. Hold Meeting Wednesday Night.

With expressions of confidence in the indissolubility of the eighteenth amendment and allusion to world-wide prohibition as the ultimate goal of the temperance ideal, the jubilee celebration of the 23rd anniversary of adoption of its first anti-liquor law was observed Wednesday night by the Georgia Woman's Christian Temperance Union.

Meeting at Grace Methodist Episcopal church on the same date—"almost to the very hour," a speaker said—on which the prohibition law was passed by the Georgia legislature in 1907, approximately 500 members of the union, together with their friends and with a list of speakers headed by Governor L. G. Hardman who, as state senator was author and outstanding advocate of the historic senate bill No. 1 that drove the saloon from Georgia, the jubilee resolved itself into a gesture of rejoicing, during which memoirs of the passage of the dry measure were portrayed in rhetoric.

The celebration, fostered by the department of citizenship of the union, included singing of the famous anti-boose song of a quarter of a century ago, "Georgia's Going Dry," and other musical renditions appropriate to the theme of the gathering, which was presided over by Mrs. Marvin Williams. On the platform, in addition to Governor Hardman and Mrs. Williams, were Rev. "Johnny" Allen of Macon, who was page in the senate during the 1907 liquor bill controversy; Mrs. M. J. Scott Russell, corresponding secretary; C. O. Jones, head of the Georgia Anti-Saloon League, and Mrs. W. J. Neel of Cartersville, widow of the late Representative Neel, one of the prime movers of early prohibition legislation in the state.

In his talk reminiscent of his days as page boy, the Macon minister drew a vivid picture of the filibuster which occurred for more than 14 hours in the house of representatives presided over by John M. Slaton as speaker. Rev. Allen declared that it was today his opinion that "Mr. Slaton was sympathetic to the liquor men" during that filibuster.

This opinion was sharply in contrast to Governor Hardman's reference to the filibuster. Speaking directly after the Macon minister, the chief executive made brief reference to the incident, defending the action of Slaton as speaker of the house during the noted filibuster.

"I want to go on record right here as saying," the governor declared, "that in my opinion Mr. Slaton did justice to the parliamentary handling of that situation."

Governor Hardman declared that the prohibition bill introduced by himself 23 years ago "was the simplest and most complete measure looking toward abolition of liquor that the United States has ever seen."

He reaffirmed his stand on the prohibition question and declared that he firmly is of the belief that the administration of the prohibition law in Georgia has been a success. The governor declared that since he has filled the chief executive post in this state he has witnessed personally only three instances of men being "decidedly under the influence of alcohol."

The governor presented his attitude toward present opposition to enforcement of the amendment in the form of rhetorical questions, some of which he answered and others which he declared were too obvious to require replies.

"The class against prohibition," he said, "tells us that people today are drinking more liquor than they ever drank before in history."

"Then, why do they want the law changed?" (Applause.)

Other speakers besides Mr. Jones and Governor Hardman included Mrs. Neel, who reminded the union of its duty to remember those who were in the forefront of the early movement to dry up the state.

The twenty-third jubilee celebration was regarded as the most successful gathering in the organization's history.

Cooler Today, No Rain Likely, Forecast Says

Although not a bit of rain is in sight, the weather man promised that Atlanta will receive some slightly cooler weather today with the possibility that the clouds will come between the sidewalks and the sun which sent the thermometer Wednesday to a hot 95.

Little as it was, Atlanta got comfort out of reading that Augusta was struggling under a 96 mercury reading and that Birmingham was sweltering with 100. Asheville was even a degree higher than Atlanta while Atlanta's low was 74.

Thunderstorms are due to fall in the southern portion of the state today and the reflex action is slated to make it cooler in the north. Mr. von Herrmann said.

ALWAYS COOL COMFORTABLE

THE GUMPS—THE MIRAGE

JIM THE CONQUEROR

By PETER B. KYNE

Thirty-Fourth Installment.

"Oh!" Crooked Bill was relieved. He was discovering things, and discoveries were not unpleasant. He eyed Don Jaime closely. "Dog-gone fine, upstanding, sort of chap," he soliloquized.

"So you're going to buy the Antrim sheep?" Don Jaime resumed.

"I've bought them—subject to the approval of the heir and the probate court."

"I'm afraid neither one will approve, Mr. Blodgett."

"Why? I'm giving all they're worth. Perhaps more."

"Unfortunately, I want those sheep. They're been feeding for two months on grass that's rightfully mine and they've done so much damage to my range I might as well keep them there and make a profit out of them—for Miss Antrim. She tells me her uncle, who was very rich, has gone broke in the market, and she's hooked the sheep and the ranch to help him out. Says he was mighty good to her while he had money and now she's not going back on him."

"By George, she is a sport, isn't she?"

"If I permit you to buy these sheep, where do you intend to graze them?"

"Don't intend to graze them. I'm going to sell them immediately."

"Locally?"

"Perhaps."

"That makes it a little binding. I wouldn't like to see you sell those sheep locally. While I can stand them on my range, for Miss Antrim's sake, my forbearance would cease if they belonged to anybody else and continued to trespass on my range."

"Is it your range?"

"No, it's state land, but I control the water. So I fear I'll have to outbid you on those sheep, Mr. Blodgett."

"I've got my heart set on them, son, and when that happens I usually get what I go after."

Don Jaime concluded it was time to strike. "You went after my dad once—and you didn't get him. He got you—in the heel. And the old greaser spirit isn't frozen in the veins of Patricia's son, Mr. William B. Latham."

Crooked Bill appeared about to collapse in his chair.

"I haven't figured out what you're up to, Mr. Crooked Bill, but it's devious, and Mr. Glenn Hackett is helping you out. You're framing something on me, and I think you merely want to get those sheep out of the way so your niece can be ordered home, leaving little Jaime Miguel Higuera bereft. Not so, Bolivia. Those sheep stay and Roberta stays. I've got to have my chance. I'm a fast worker, but there's such a thing as indecent haste in courtship and I decline to disturb my dignity by appearing clamorous. The thing would be fatal to my chances. Your niece is an outrageous coquette, if you must know it—and I bet you do—so it's my job to make her and I'd like to see the photograph of the antediluvian uncle and that can throw a cold chisel into my cogs and get away with it."

Crooked Bill thought of all the things he would have to explain if Roberta ever learned what he had been up to, and his thoughts saddened him. "Can you fix it with the judge to disapprove the sale?"

"Certainly I'll offer 10 cents a head more for those sheep than you have. I can't spare that amount of ready cash to put into sheep just now, so you'll loan me the money, secured by a chattel mortgage on the sheep."

"But I've already agreed to turn the sheep over to someone else," said Latham.

"Who is that person?"

"Bill Dingle. I haven't sold them to him yet, but the deal is ready to be closed."

"Ah, on jawbone, eh? You're going to take a chattel mortgage and sell at a loss, for Dingle is too good a sheepman to give you a profit on your deal," Don Jaime commenced to chuckle.

"You're doomed to pay a high price for your fancies, Uncle William. Dingle will sell those sheep as soon as he can and beat it for parts unknown with the money, leaving you to charge that chattel mortgage on your next income tax statement."

Crooked Bill's face registered alarm. "You think so?"

"Well, after you've closed the deal, he'll try to stop. And he'll succeed unless he's stopped. You've bought yourself a little shooting scrape, that's what you've done. Let me know the minute the deal with Dingle is closed, because immediately thereafter I'm going to guard every water hole and those sheep of yours will die of thirst before Dingle can move them off that range."

"You appear to be holding all the aces."

"It's a habit of mine. What are you going to do about it?"

"I think I'll sell you those sheep," Crooked Bill faltered.

"You're regaining your senses. I'll buy them at two dollars a head less than you paid for them."

"If I sell to you, will you give me your word of honor never to tell Roberta a word about this?"

"I'm willing to make that stipulation a part of the contract and set an agreed amount of damages to be paid if I fail to keep my covenant. However, most folks in this country usually take my word of honor, which I now freely give. Let's shake hands on it."

That night Crooked Bill left for home. He knew when he had met his match.

When Crooked Bill boarded the train for El Paso he sent the following telegram to Glenn Hackett:

"The ship is sunk without a trace so brace yourself for bad news Stop. This Higgins boy gave me cards and spades four aces big and little casino and beat me to death on the sweeps. Stop I am mighty sorry you have lost but far from depressed that he appears to be going to win Stop. However we will keep on trying although I have no hope Stop I belong in a home for the feeble-minded."

At almost the same time Don Jaime joined Ken Hobart in front of the Mansion House.

"Any luck?" Hobart queried anxiously.

"I'm in the sheep business, Ken. Tomorrow morning we'll pay off that gang of murderers Dingle has herding those sheep and put our own men on the job. Dingle gets the rams, too."

"What?" replied Don Jaime mournfully. "doth it profit a man if he gaineth the whole world and suffereth the loss of the lodestar of his existence?"

"None whatever," Ken admitted, without knowing in the least what he was talking about.

Five miles outside the Los Algodones his sharp eyes observed something far ahead and off the side of the road. He called Don Jaime's attention to it. In the starlight a tiny red dot gleamed.

"Cigaret Mexican careless," Don Jaime murmured. "Ah, he's doused it. Getting ready for business." He reached down into the tonneau and brought up a carbine; simultaneously Ken Hobart swung the car off the road and went through the low sage in a wide arc. "The may be holes, and dry water courses on this road," he announced calmly, "but we'll have to take a chance."

He switched off the lights just as a volley of rifle broke the stillness of the night. The car was hit twice, but most of the bullets droned overhead. Don Jaime pumped his carbine, firing at the flashes and the car crashed on; when the magazine was empty he set the rifle back in the tonneau.

They reached the hacienda without further incident. Don Jaime alighted and entered the patio. Roberta ran swiftly to meet him.

"You're safe, Jimmy?" she cried.

"Reasonably so, Bobby," he replied. "My information was correct. Dingle's crowd of imported killers laid for us." He held his hat toward her and ran his fingers through two hairs in the crown. "And that bonnet cost me $40," he grieved.

"Oh, Jimmy! What if he aimed lower?"

"Have you been worried, Bobby?" he asked gently.

She nodded.

"It's been a long time since anybody worried over me, Bobby. What will I do when you're gone?"

"What did you do before I came, Jimmy?"

"I'd better go soon. There's nothing more of a business nature for me to attend to. There never was, in fact—just a few papers to sign, some sheep to look at—and they're really your worry, not mine."

A. M. BAXTER, 85, DIES NEAR SUWANEE

LAWRENCEVILLE, Ga., July 30. A. M. Baxter, one of Gwinnett county's oldest and most prominent citizens, died at his home near Suwanee Wednesday after a week's illness. Mr. Baxter was 85 years of age Tuesday. He was known to his many friends as "Uncle Dock."

He was a son of the late Joseph B. Weaver, who moved to Gwynn's county in 1837 from North Carolina, and later became a judge of the superior court. Mr. Baxter was a power in politics, civic movements and in the county, and took much interest in county affairs.

In 1871, he married Miss Eunice Strickland, of the prominent Strickland family of near Suwanee, she being a daughter of the late John Strickland. Mr. Baxter, in a recent sketch of his life, stated that any credit that might be due him should be given to his wife "as I regard her as the mother of my children."

He joined the Confederate army in 1863, a member of Captain Scott Thomas' company, and served with distinction during the remainder of the conflict. Until his death he was the last surviving member of his company.

He was always on the side of all measures to uphold the people in sobriety and the enforcement of all laws. Mr. Baxter was not a member of any church, believing there were too many churches. He believed that there should be only one church and all worship together. He did accept Jesus Christ as the Savior of the world. He drank no cold drinks, or coffee and did not use tobacco in any form.

TOMMY ARMOUR WINS CANADIAN OPEN TOURNEY

Veteran Scot Beats Leo Diegel by Three Strokes.

ANCASTER, Ont., July 30.—(AP)—Tommy Armour, great Scotch stylist, today won the open golf championship of Canada, by defeating Leo Diegel, unorthodox American pro, 138 strokes to 141 in a 36-hole playoff for the title.

In the championship proper at 72 holes last week the two pros tied with scores of 277. Armour turning in a sensational 64 on his last round to 67 for Diegel.

The scoring today was higher. Armour playing the two rounds in 69 each, a stroke under par for each 18, while Diegel, after keeping pace with his friend in the morning, slipped to 72, two over par, in the afternoon.

Diegel faltered at the 11th hole of the afternoon round, the 29th hole of the day, when he took seven, three over par, while Armour held out in the conventional four. The three strokes gained here marked Armour's margin of victory.

A BAD HOLE. This hole proved the nemesis of Johnny Farrell Saturday and today it cost Diegel the title he had won four times. Leo hooked his drive into bushes, took two strokes to go 10 yards coming out, was short with his approach and finally on the green in five, took two putts. Armour, in the meantime, drove straight and true, sent his second on the green, and holed out in two putts for his par.

The battle was fast and furious throughout the morning and the first nine holes of the afternoon rounds. There never was more than a stroke between the contestants until Diegel uncorked his fatal hook.

Diegel scored two birdies and went one over par on one hole going out in the morning and played every hole coming home in par for a score of 69. Armour had one birdie on the first nine and one hole over par but he picked up a birdie coming home to leave matters all even at lunch.

The first nine in the afternoon was played in 33 strokes, two under par, and the 28th, too, failed to give an advantage when a pair of fours were scored. And then came the turn in the tide, resulting in the eventual swamping of the long hitting Diegel.

DIEGEL OUTPLAYED. Armour, who won the title in 1927 and has twice been runner-up, outplayed Diegel on the whole. Diegel, the champion in 1924, 1925, 1928 and 1929, was wild in the morning and through the green and had to make some great recoveries to keep pace with the black-haired Scot.

Diegel won the championship last year with a great 74 and Armour was the runner-up, two strokes behind. The cards:

Hall Is Defeated By Cliff Sutter.

SEABRIGHT, N. J., July 30.—(UN)—The Seabright Lawn Tennis and Cricket Club's invitation tennis tournament reached the semi-final round today with Ellsworth Vines, Pasadena, Cal.; Francis T. Hunter, New Rochelle, N. Y.; Clifford Sutter, New Orleans, and Sidney B. Wood, New York, remaining in the men's singles. Virginia Gilliver, Philadelphia; Edith Cross, San Francisco; Josephine Cruickshank, Santa Ana, Cal.; and Mrs. Laurence A. Harper, Los Angeles, were left in the women's singles.

Vines, 18-year-old sensation, scored the outstanding victory of the day when he defeated R. Norris Williams, Philadelphia, former national champion, 6-0, 4-6, 6-2.

MAWNNIN'

By Ed Danforth

Night baseball is creeping up like a thief in the night—take it back—I mean "closing in like a Mississippi flood around a smokehouse." The levee has broken in a dozen places. Flee for your lives, men!

News comes that the Nashville ball park has been measured for a set of lights. Little Rock already is playing after supper. The Vol management will also hang a red-amber-green traffic light over the right field fence to control the rush of home runs.

But even though the kilowatts are rapidly surrounding Spiller field, the owner declares there will be no night games there. Atlanta will be the last park to be lighted, if ever, he says.

MOVE YOUR HEN HOUSE. A correspondent who signs W. W. S., 135 Nassau street, sends in the following communication regarding night sports in general:

"In answer to R. J. Spiller's remark that couldn't fool a hen into laying eggs in the day at night by the use of lights, I enclose the following clipping from a trade journal:

"According to a statement issued by the General Electric Company, the powerful electric light system installed for night baseball at the Western League baseball park, Des Moines, Iowa, has greatly benefited the poultrymen in the vicinity of the park.

"They claim that they are gathering more than the usual quota of eggs. The hens are fooled by the lights and are inspired to work overtime, it is explained."

It might be explained that W. W. S. belongs to a firm of electrical engineers. We who hope to keep the day for sports and the nights for snores have a lot of propaganda to fight.

HELP, HELP, HELP. A Kansas City golf course will illuminate the first nine holes for night play. And night automobile races in Florida are announced. Is there no end to it all?

ANOTHER CHAMPION. H. E. Chester sends this word: "In your columns you talk a lot about Bobby Jones, Bryant Grant and W. L. Stribling, but the one you have left out is Joe (Scotty) Logan, king of the speed boats. Joe (Scotty) Logan began his endurance contest last Friday at Lakewood, driving a motorboat around. And he will be there until the motor melts. These Logan boys just won't slow down."

If this weather keeps up Joe's (Scotty's) motor is certain to melt and he will have no chance to win a national championship. However, we will wish him luck right on.

BOXING AND BULL FIGHTING. Here in the big city folks take boxing seriously, or at least as a matter of course. Yet outside town, where boxing is simply something to read about in the papers, folks do not regard it with complacency.

Here is what the Banks County Journal has to say about boxing, comment being inspired by the Sharkey-Schmeling fight:

"This United States of America is the greatest aggregation that ever assembled under one tent. We have staved and lent tens of thousands of cattle freeze in the west, kill more steers in our packing houses than all the rest of the world, we are the greatest butchers of each other of any country, then hold prize fights and gather by the thousands to see two brutes pound each other. Then, when Spain or Mexico hold a full fight and kill a few bulls, we hold up our hands in holy horror and say, how awful, so cruel, poor bulls. And so it goes. 'Consistency thou art a jewel.'"

CRACKERS BEAT PELICANS TWICE HERE, 5-3 AND 5-4

Applying and Barron Shine as Club Takes Two Games.

By Ralph McGill. "An Applying a day won't keep the doctors away from me if this keeps up," mused Larry Gilbert Wednesday afternoon as he watched his Pelicans drop two to the Crackers at Spiller field, the scores 5-3 and 5-4.

"No, sir, an Applying today just about finished me," he concluded. "In the first game the Crackers just naturally overpowered the Pelicans with some old-fashioned hitting in the pinches."

It was the second game which saw Red Barron and Luke Applying, collegiate players, beat the Pelicans out of the baseball game. Red Barron slammed a triple to start things going in the third inning of the second game. He came through with a home run to break the tie in the seventh. It was this home run, which bounced into a lot of excited republicans in left field, which won the ball game.

IN THE FIELD. In the field it was Luke Applying who stopped everything the Pelicans hit that way.

In the second inning he made what was positively the greatest catch that Southern league baseball has ever seen made by an infielder.

With one out, Zeke Bonura, the powerful Pelican first sacker, slammed one that went skipping along the ground a mile a minute. It was far to Applying's right.

GREAT PLAY. Somehow or other he made it. He reached his hand out and got it back-handed as the ball bounded crazily. He was off balance and facing from first base.

Yet he straightened up and threw, all in one motion, and the ball sped true to Mule Shirley's glove with Zeke Bonura's feet still a foot away from the base.

The crowd yelled itself hoarse then. It was the catch of the year.

Luke Applying started three double-plays in that second game. He made catch after catch. Had the Pelicans fired a six-inch shell down toward short it is probable that Luke Applying would have fielded it and thrown the runner out at first.

"THE SENSATION. He did not great amount of hitting but the former Petrel shortstop was the sensation of the afternoon. He covered that territory at short completely. And his double in the third brought in one tally that the Crackers could have spared.

The second game was the one which carried all the thrills. In the first the Crackers knocked Salvador Glatto out of the box and maintained a comfortable lead all the way.

PAXOS MEETS JONES TONIGHT

Milo Steinborn and Mike Miller Also on Mat Card.

John Paxos, the crack Greek wrestler, will meet Paul Jones, sensational Texas heavyweight, in a finish wrestling match at Spiller field tonight.

In the semi-windup to the excellent heavyweight card, Milo Steinborn and Mike Miller, the latter holder of the American Legion's belt and a real title contender, meet in a one-hour match.

A 15-minute preliminary will open the match. The starting time is 8:15 o'clock.

GREAT MATCH. Jones, who was recently defeated by Jim London in a match which Little Rock took from Atlanta by doubling the guarantee, made a great showing against the champion. The Little Rock Gazette said of the match:

"The action went 45 minutes and 40 seconds, with Jones the aggressor until the last 20 seconds, when London, in the characteristic fashion of wrestling champions, took full advantage of the first opportunity that came his way. London got a break and followed it up. Shortly before the end Jones had gotten his favorite hold, the hook scissors, to the extreme delight of the customers, who wanted to see what the champion would do if caught in it. What he did after taking the punishment for perhaps a minute was deliberately to roll himself out of the ring, accompanied by the challenger and the scissors. Referee Charlie Rentrop unhooked the scissors as both lay on the boards outside the ropes.

MEANT DEFEAT. "Immediately after they had gotten back into the ring, and while London was adjusting his trunk, Jones leaped for him again and, while he got his legs around the champion's body, London broke loose before the hook was applied. Jones rushed in again, leaped with legs apart, but London stepped aside and when Jones fell his head struck the mat first. He was dazed and an easy victim. London picked him up with a croch and shoulder hold, whirled him about until he appeared unconscious, then dropped him to the mat and pinned his limp shoulders for the first and only fall.

Jones lay on the ring floor unconscious until carried to the dressing room in the powerful arms of Rentrop. He still was unconscious at the end of the 15-minute rest period and London was awarded the second fall by default."

That Figure in Blue? That's Old Bob Himself

Bob Higgins, Who Jockeyed the Crackers Home in 1919, Now Dixie Umpire.

There was a figure in blue out at Spiller Field Wednesday afternoon, peering through his mask and calling a nice game, who might have got a stomach ache from the crowd known who he was.

Had they known it was Bob Higgins, old Bob himself, who had kicked the young team of the Crackers up to a pennant in 1919, they would have been slapping their hands for him instead of waiting for a chance to boo.

His grin is still as infectious and still as sincere as it was in 1919 when he took charge of the kid team that Charley Frank had got together somehow and brought them in about five games ahead of the field.

That was one bit of managing that never has been duplicated in the Southern league. Bob Higgins came to the Crackers on July 6. The club was in sixth place, five games out of first place.

It was a position that was apparently hopeless. Charley Frank, who sat on the bench here just for appearances sake but who stayed in the stands on the road and left the team to Bob, wanted an experienced manager for the kids.

They were at Mobile when Bob Higgins took charge and started getting them into shape. And they started a winning streak that went crazily on until in September they were five games out in front and stayed there until the flag dropped.

GREAT YEAR. "That was a great year," said Bob Higgins, "and a lot of those kids are stars today. We just hustled and fought and they never could beat us it seemed."

The kid team was the one that Charley Frank liked best of all. There were some great figures on it. Ivy Griffin, who is playing first base for the Little Rock club, was the first baseman that year.

Helping Bob Higgins, catch was Lena Stiles.

Scrappy Moore and Harry Lamran held down the third-base position that season. Chick Galloway and Jimmy Dykes played in the infield.

HERE AND THERE. Bing Miller was in the outfield for a while, but moved on to Little Rock. Harden Herndon, Sammy Mayer, Milt Reed and Merlin Kopf were some of the outfielders.

Tom Sheehan, now pitching for the Kansas City Blues, is the only pitcher still going strong. Johnny Suggs works with convulsions at Spiller field. Dan Boone is still playing around. Ray Roberts, Ad Brennan and Joe Thornburn were some of the staff.

Charley Frank got the team together for next to nothing. He paid them ribbon clerk salaries but they went out there and battled their way to a pennant.

COLORFUL CAREER. Bob Higgins has had a colorful career. He has been through the baseball mill, has Bob Higgins, and he has been through a lot of other things.

'PA' W. L. DELAY RETURN HOME TO DISCUSS BOUT

Joe Jacobs, Schmeling's Manager, Requests Conference.

By Ed Danforth. "We may be back in August or we may not be back before October." That was the word sent to The Constitution early in July by Pa Stribling just before he and W. L. sailed to knock Phil Scott into a beauty shop.

It then was explained that Pa and Stribling were anxious to talk Joe Jacobs, manager of Max Schmeling, the temporary champion, into a match in Berlin in September.

Cables yesterday from London indicated that Pa and W. L. have cancelled their return reservations and are waiting in London for Jacobs to arrive from New York for a conference. Jacobs asked for the meeting. The bout with Schmeling in Berlin, projected in New York a month ago, may be about to materialize after all.

When Pa was discussing the chances of fighting Schmeling this summer in Berlin and thus saving steamer fare, the idea was scouted by some in New York.

WHAT MAX THINKS. "Do you think Schmeling would be foolish enough to fight W. L. in Berlin so soon after winning the title and lose his crown before he had had time to cash in on it?" Pa was asked.

"Listen, you have no idea how conceited fighters get," Pa responded. "Schmeling thinks he would have knocked Sharkey out in another round and he might have at that—and he is positive he can whip any other fighter in the business. Sharkey, who told W. L. didn't he? Well, Schmeling would be willing to take a chance before a Berlin crowd with W. L. or anybody else in the business."

"But hasn't Schmeling a contract to fight for Madison Square Garden next June against any man they name?"

CONTRACT NO GOOD. "That contract is no good now," Pa answered. "Joe Jacobs and Max figure they signed it under duress. They offered to fight Sharkey a return match in September and the Garden would not stand for it. The conferences Jacobs had with Garden officials were unsatisfactory; in fact, they ended with a lot of ill feeling. Jacobs is through with the Garden."

Announcement of a match between Stribling and Schmeling in Berlin would be a stunning surprise to the boxing world. Some expects Max to face a strong opponent before he returns to the States next year.

If he takes his synthetic title into the ring with Young Stribling the fight would win the hearts of Pa. Stribling will come home from Europe champion of the world.

For Stribling would take Schmeling with little more effort than he took to knock out Phil Scott, who is spending the summer here, said their reservations had been cancelled and they were awaiting the arrival of Jacobs, who is now in New York.

Jacobs had requested the conference. No other sailing date was named in the cablegram.

Stribling, by virtue of his two-round knockout of Phil Scott, British heavyweight champion, Monday in London, has become one of the leading contenders for the world's crown, awarded to Schmeling on a foul from Jack Sharkey.

Stribling's Hand Deadened For Scott Battle. LONDON, July 30.—(UN)—Young Stribling, of Georgia, had a local anesthetic injected in his left hand just before he fought Phil Scott.

Tom Heeney Stopped By 'Tuffy' Griffiths

QUEENSBORO STADIUM, LONG ISLAND CITY, N. Y., July 30.—(UN)—Ambrose Gerald "Tuffy" Griffiths, Sioux City, Iowa, scored a technical knockout over Tom Heeney, the so-called "hard rock" from New Zealand, in the final round of a ten-round bout here tonight.

Griffiths weighed 187 and Heeney 205-12.

Griffiths had Heeney all but out in the ninth round, the bell saving the Anze.

When the bell for the tenth round was sounded, Griffiths danced madly into the center of the ring. Not so Heeney. He was dazed and after taking one step toward the center of the ring he turned back and faced his corner. Referee Arthur Donovan held Griffiths away until Heeney indicated that he did not care to go on.

The outcome seemed inevitable in view of the proceedings up to the end of the ninth. Griffiths had led practically all the way.

Heeney had a shade in the first round when he planted several hard body blows and the next two rounds were virtually even. Griffiths, however, piled up an overwhelming margin of points and would have been an easy choice for the decision had the bout gone the limit.

Heeney got over one strong right to the head in the first minute of the bout. This made the Sioux City boy sit down on the ropes. He sprang right up, however, in no way damaged.

GOOD MATCHES MARK NET PLAY

One upset and two other unusually good matches were played Wednesday afternoon on Deatur's annual city tennis tournament. The remaining quarter and semi-final matches will be played this afternoon.

Hansford Sams defeated "Red" Bolton, last year champion, 6-0, 5-7, 6-4, in the feature upset of the tournament. Sams played good tennis throughout, particularly in the last set.

In a semi-final match in the girls' singles, Helen Schuford, present champion, defeated Polly Jones, 4-0, 6-3, 6-2. She made a great comeback in the final two sets in order to win the match.

Smith and Clark, present doubles champions, won a hard-fought victory over Kirkpatrick and Hagan in the men's doubles.

Howard and Ragsdale were leading Hudson and Bolton, runners-up in the men's doubles last year, by one set when the match was called on account of darkness.

Grant and Mooney Plan Departure Today

Bryan Grant and Jack Mooney, Atlanta tennis stars, will leave today for Southampton, Long Island, and the invitation tennis tournament there unless an unexpected doctor's order bans the trip.

Grant, who recently won the national clay courts tennis championship, will compete in the singles, as will Mooney. They will then team together in the doubles. Mooney has been runner-up to Grant in most of the local tournaments and is a capable player.

Grant's suitcases are all packed and he is ready to go. He was ordered by physicians to rest for a time following his victory in the national clay courts meet. Grant has taken a rest and says he feels great. He will go through an examination today. If the doctor says "no" he will remain here. But the "no" is not expected.

Stribling Entitled to Recognition as American Heavyweight King

'W. L.' FAVORED OVER SCHMELING BY RING CRITICS

Georgian Did Fight Game Favor by Disposing of Scott.

By Frank Getty.
United News Sports Editor.
NEW YORK, July 30.—(UN)—For the first time since he took his thumb out of his mouth and pulled on his first boxing glove, Young Stribling has won the unanimous backing of American fight fans.

The Georgian boy's quick knockout of Phil Scott before some 20,000 disillusioned British spectators was the masterstroke of a topsy-turvy boxing career, begun in a circus sideshow at the age of 6, a career which carried Stribling close to the fight heights he found him while often a challenger, never a champion.

THE CHAMPION.
Right now, following his one-round knockout of Otto Von Porat and his two-round conquest of Scott, Young Stribling is entitled to recognition as the American heavyweight champion. His chances of attaining the world championship depend upon one can maneuvering is necessary to get Max Schmeling back into the ring.

Most fight fans, rating Schmeling off his showing against Jack Sharkey and conceding Stribling's vast improvement both in manner and morale, would favor the southern boy to beat the German if they met.

By knocking out Scott Monday night, Stribling did more than to boost himself into the position of foremost contender for the heavyweight title. He disposed effectively of one can hope for all time, of the menace of "Fighting Phil."

SHOWED SCOTT UP.
After the Miami fiasco, the British firmly believed that Scott had been fooled and grossly wronged in his February fight with Sharkey. They insisted that Philip was not only champion of Great Britain, but of the world. They believed Scott when he protested that he was game but sensitive, with a loose nerve in his thigh.

Stribling knocked Scott down with cleanly-delivered body blows and made him take the final count, in the second round, resting on one knee, too weak even to utter his familiar blast of "foul." The British now know that Scott never was a champion and the boxing critics who were his staunchest supporters following the Sharkey affair have turned against him and are urging his retirement.

The next thing on the cards is a bout between Stribling and Victorio Campolo, the tall Argentine heavyweight, who has been holding down a chair in one corner of Madison Square Garden with no one to fight. The Garden owns Campolo's contract and so is in the position of acting as Victorio's manager. Frank Bruen, who arranges such matters for the corporation, has offered Stribling a match with Campolo in September, and the papers probably will be signed upon the Georgian's arrival early next week. Then Stribling can have another whack at Sharkey, if he gets past the Campolo party, and eventually, if Maxie ever gets up the courage to bring back his tin (tin), a bout with Schmeling for the heavyweight championship of the world.

CONSISTENT.
H. W. Page, of Somerset, has won the British Legion billiard title for the fourth time. He has just defeated I. Cable, of Kent, in the deciding game in London by a margin of 244 points in a 1,000-point match.

Knute's Lads Become New Coaching "Peril"

"Melancholy Dane" Has Sent 25 Disciples Into the Land To Hunt Rival Mentors.

By Herb Clark.
While the talk about "perils," red and yellow, wet and dry, is going the rounds, give a thought to the blue-irish "peril" of the nation's gridirons.

With Knute Rockne, the "Old Master" himself, turning out bigger and better squads each year, the sit-she-ay-shun was bad enough. Rival coaches had enough to worry over then.

But now the case is even worse. Where before there was but one Siva bent on ruining well-laid plans, now there are 25. For just that number of Rockne-taught head coaches are broadcasting trouble each Saturday in October and November.

The thing has assumed the aspect of a national problem. A perusal of the list of the nation's coaching staffs shows that one more than an even two dozen of them are headed by disciples of Rockne, the "Melancholy Dane." They are scattered through the length and breadth of the land, each with his own little group of disciples and each turning out football teams which would do credit to the master himself.

The 25 have traveled to the four corners of the land. From the palm-tree country of Florida to the salmon country of Washington, from steel-towered New York to Spanish-bungalow California no section is without the diversified, deceptive offense. The opposition is everywhere shouting that "there's another bunch of Irishmen."

And in most cases they mean just that.

COLLINS AT U. N. C.
There's Chuck Collins at the University of North Carolina and Charlie Buchanan at the University of Florida and Harry Mehre at the University of Georgia, to stay close to home, who have each turned out clubs worthy foes for any eleven.

There's Jimmy Phelan, who last year brought Purdue to the championship of the Big Ten and who is expected to make Washington even more of a power on the Pacific coast than it has been in the past.

There's Elmer Layden, who coached Duquesne through a season without a defeat last year. There's Ed Madigan, whose little St. Mary's squad at Oakland, Cal., ranked fourth for the Erskine award last year. There's Charles Dorais, at the University of Detroit, and Harry Stuhldreher, at Villanova, whose teams have been sensations of late.

A LONG LIST.
The list could run on and on, including men who have made the big schools better and those who have made the small squads among the most-feared of all.

And that is for an even two dozen men, the head coaches. Assistants are even more numerous, each playing a big part in the direction of the teams which are listed each week on the win ledger.

This season one more will be added. Chet Wynne is to take over the reins at Auburn. And much of the speculation inside the conference now is of that same Auburn squad, which is expected to rise from its lowly station and make a drive for the top of the southern conference.

THOMAS AT BAMA.
Next year Frank Thomas will become the head man. And Alabama is hoped to continue in its present high position under Frank's reign.

And the time Frank is ready to take his step up it is certain that a number of others of these disciples of South Bend will be ready to join him.

The "Melancholy Dane," turning out great football teams each year, manages at the same time to turn out great players who have a habit

COCHET KEEPS FRANCE AT TOP OF NET GAME

As Long as He Is Good No Other Nation Has Chance.

By L. S. Cameron.
United News Staff Correspondent.

NEW YORK, July 30.—(UN)—American Davis cup players will return from France soon bringing no cup, but carrying lots of speculations as to the next trophy onslaught.

Two of the most important figures of international tennis in the past decade have announced their definite retirement. They, of course, are "Big Bill" Tilden, and the French star, Jean Borotra.

There will be no end of discussion as to whether the retirements will stick.

BIG BILL.
Somehow the impression prevails that Borotra positively is through. But Tilden—well, that's different. Who can say that there won't be another international cable exchange, a last-minute juggling of arrangements and a sudden dash by Big Bill into the racket wars?

Bill said he didn't want to play this year—thought it against the best interests, etc.—but he did play and that's the important thing. Of course Tilden would score an alibi, but surely he has one in the fact he was drafted against his "better judgment."

And say what you will, the fact remains that Tilden did save the Americans from utter rout. He scored the only American victory of the five played. This kept clear his record of at least one victory in each of the 11 Davis cup finals, he has participated in, beginning in 1920.

FRANCE'S CHANCES.
France's chances of making a fifth consecutive Davis cup victory will rest almost solely on Henri Cochet, and so long as little Henri plays as he did this year, no nation will have much chance to take the cup away. He virtually kept the cup for France this year, scoring victories in two singles and doing more than half of the work in winning the doubles while teamed with Jacques Brugnon.

The United States' hopes for 1931 are none too bright. It was easy enough getting into the interzone final, and may be as easy next year. He virtually kept the cup for France this year, scoring victories in two singles and doing more than half of the work in winning the doubles while teamed with Jacques Brugnon.

NOT WINNERS.
The fine young stars on which the United States was supposed to have pinned cup hopes are still fine young stars, but they were not winners, and save the game itself, victory is the important thing.

Wilmer Allison and John Van Ryn, top United States doubles combination, must be at their peak by this time. Yet they fared ill against France. George Lott was a creditable performer and yet he couldn't win in the challenge round either against Cochet or Borotra. John Hope Doeg didn't have a chance.

We have a new young star in Ellsworth Vines from out in California, where the good tennis players grow. Vines beat the great Frank Hunter, No. 2 United States player, in the Missouri finals here Sunday. Maybe Vines will be a tennis Moses. Maybe he'll just be a flash.

NIGHT GAME.
Florida and Auburn play a night football game at Miami October 11.

Golf Links Lighted For Night Games

KANSAS CITY, July 30.—(AP)—Eastwood Hills golf course here will be lighted for night playing, one of the first, if not the first golf club in the country to try the nocturnal game.

A test of one lighted hole has proved a success. A contract calls for installation of lights on the first nine holes to enable play after sundown by next week.

'FLASH' IS WON BY JAMESTOWN

Widener Two-Year-Old Breezes to Victory at Saratoga.

SARATOGA SPRINGS, N. Y., July 30.—(AP)—George D. Widener's Jamestown, rated as one of the best two-year-olds in training and quoted at the prohibitive odds of one to four, inaugurated the Saratoga racing season today with a victory in the 56th running of the Flash stakes.

F. Ambrose Clark's Never Fade ran second with E. R. Bradley's Black Tyrone third. Jamestown stepped the five and one furlongs in 1:06.

It was the second start for the Widener juvenile, but he was as impressive as in his first victory at Aqueduct, breezing home three lengths in front of Never Fade. Many owners ducked the issue when Jamestown was slated as a sure starter, with the result that only six turf youngsters accepted the issue. The winner won $225.

The Saratoga handicap with its $5,000 added purse went to the Mount Royal stable's Marine, 5 to 1 shot. The Wheatley stable's Frisius came in for third money while J. H. Macomber's heavily burdened Pete-Wrath finished among the also rans. The time for the mile and quarter was 2:04 1-5.

THREE ATLANTA STARS SURVIVE AT ASHEVILLE

De Mott, J. and A. Halverstadt Enter Semi-Finals With Hines.

ASHEVILLE, N. C., July 30.—(AP)—The North Carolina open tennis tournament became a Tangle event in name only today as the two remaining natives were eliminated from the men's singles matches.

Three Georgians, all from Atlanta, and Wilmer Hines, Columbia, S. C., the defending champion, remained in possession of the court at Biltmore Forest Club.

Days Morgan, Biltmore Forest, and Tench Coxe, Asheville, the two North Carolinians in the quarter finals, fell by the wayside today. Morgan lost to Alfred Halverstadt, of Atlanta, in two hard-fought sets, 6-3, 7-5. Coxe succumbed to the steady attack of Ralph Demott, Atlanta, 6-1, 6-1.

HINES WINS.

Hines breezed into the semi-finals without difficulty, downing Jack Beckman, of Charleston, S. C., 6-1, 6-3.

In the other quarter final match James Halverstadt, Atlanta, proved stronger than Lenoir Wright, Charlotte, winning in the straight sets after the North Carolinian had waged a hard fight in the opening set. The score was 11-9, 6-4.

No upset occurred in the opening round of the men's doubles this afternoon. The No. 1 seeded team, composed of Hines and Judge Beaver, Gainesville, Fla., went into the second round by defeating Lieutenant Dave Hedekin, Bethesda, Md., and R. H. Rogers, Asheville, 4-6, 6-0, 6-2.

J. AND A. DRAW BYE.

The Vanderbilt brothers drew a bye, while the Rogers brothers, George and Stewart, of Asheville, took the measure of Tench Coxe and Dick Covington, their fellow citizens in a brilliant three-set match, 7-5, 6-2, 6-2.

The third brothers team in the tournament fell out of the running when Reeves and Dick Rutledge, Lakeland, Fla., lost to Lenoir Wright, Charlotte, and Willard Sileo, Charleston.

In the women's singles, Eliza Coxe, Asheville, favorite to retain the title, easily won her opening match, defeating Elizabeth Metts, Asheville, 6-3, 6-1.

STRIBLING MOVES FOR BERLIN BOUT

fore he knocked out Phil Scott in the second round Monday night, the London Daily Mail said today.

Stribling injured his hand before the Von Porat fight at Chicago in June. It was with his left hand that he knocked out both Von Porat and Scott.

"About an hour before the contest with Scott," the Daily Mail quotes Pa Stribling as saying, "W. L.'s left hand was so painful I called a specialist who injected novocaine to deaden the pain."

Mick Walker Wins Battle at Newark

NEWARK, N. J., July 30.—(UN)—Mickey Walker, of Rumson, N. J., world's middleweight champion, knocked out Willie Oster, of Boston, former navy champion, after 50 seconds of the third round, of a scheduled 10-round bout at Dreamland Park here tonight.

Walker's title was not at stake, both boxers coming in over the middleweight limit. Walker weighed 163, Oster 168.

A crowd of about 20,000, the largest to see a fight in Newark this year, watched Oster, who had held Walker off for two rounds, go to the canvas four times in the third round before Referee Gene Roman stopped the contest. A left hook to the chin dropped Oster for the fourth time and the referee stepped in to save the Bostonian from further punishment.

Marriage Is Big Help To Club, Says Coach

THOMASVILLE, Ga., July 30.—The Times-Enterprise, local paper, has just received a letter from Thomasville High school athletic coach, "Doc" Harper, predicting a good season for the local high school football team.

The coach expresses the belief that T. H. S. will have a team that will rank among the leaders in the Second District High School Athletic Association. He ventured the opinion that the recent marriage of Assistant Coach E. O. Garner, of the school here, is a good omen, for he recalls that the year he himself was married his football team was the undisputed champion outfit of the conference.

Fitzgerald Club Sets Pace in Second Half

FITZGERALD, Ga., July 30.—Fitzgerald, first half champs in the Southeast Georgia league, took possession of first place in the second half race yesterday by blanking the Dublin club, 3 to 0.

George Johnson gave the visitors only two hits and was given excellent support by his teammates, McClendon, Shepherd and Powell led the Fitzgerald batting attack with two hits each. Shepherd hit a home run in the eighth.

Fitzgerald now leads Dublin by half a game.

Nashville Vols Plan Night Games

NASHVILLE, Tenn., July 30.—(AP)—Night baseball for the Nashville club of the Southern association is under consideration.

Jack Whaley, president of the club, has requested estimates from three concerns on the cost of installing beacons at the park so that evening games may be played. His plans at present, however, are tentative.

Attendance at games here this season is considerably below last year.

ABELSON OFFERS '2-FOR-1' SALE

Two Top-Notch Bouts Head Card at Auditorium August 5.

Bargain hunters of Atlanta will flock to the city auditorium on the night of August 5 when Matchmaker Max Abelson puts on his "two-for-one" sale.

Matchmaker Abelson will offer two bouts on a card that is well balanced. In the main event Ted Goodrich, the Atlanta welterweight who is striving to redeem himself for his defeat at the hands of Sammy Baker here several months ago, will meet Billy Alger, Phoenix Indian battler, another leading contender.

This bout will mark the return of Goodrich, who was checked in his rise to the top in his class. Since his defeat by Baker, Goodrich has practically "rebuilt" himself and is ready for another campaign that he hopes will land him at the top of the heap.

Alger comes to Atlanta with a reputation of being a first-rate scrapper. He has fought about all the leading boys in his division, including Jack Thompson twice, and will prove a tough customer for Ted.

Preceding this event is a bout that deserves the top place on any card. Jack Tunney, the Birmingham boy who has quite a following in Atlanta, will take on Jack Knight, the Cairo (Ga.) light-heavyweight. This bout will rival the main event for share.

Both boys know their stuff. To round out the card, Abelson is lining up some good boys and will present a well-balanced card.

Atlanta Woman Bows at Asheville

ASHEVILLE, N. C., July 30.—(AP)—All favorites in the women's invitation golf tournament at the Biltmore Forest Club here came through the first round matches in easy fashion today.

Mrs. W. H. Willard, Charlotte medalist, had no trouble in downing Mrs. W. R. Cotton, Miami, Fla., but will meet sterner opposition tomorrow in Mrs. Conway Thompson, Spartanburg, S. C. Mrs. Thompson advanced to the second round by defeating Mrs. D. Simmons, of Asheville, 8 and 7.

Other victories in the championship flight were Mrs. J. D. Seely, Winston-Salem, who scored a 4 and 3 win over Miss Jane Myers, Savannah, Ga., and Mrs. R. W. Billin, Anchorage, Ky., who nosed out Mrs. J. D. Jacobs, Atlanta, on the home green, one up.

Four Matches Played In East Lake Tourney.

East Lake golfers completed four matches Wednesday afternoon in the first round of the annual Latham and Atkinson trophy tournament. Fred Nesbitt defeated A. N. Patton, 4-3; E. H. Horton defeated J. N. Fisher, 3-1; J. A. Stephenson defeated C. D. Flagler, 1-up and C. H. McFee defeated Wimberly Peters, 2-up.

Thompson Wins At Anley Park.

W. D. Thompson defeated R. L. Nichols, 2-1 Wednesday afternoon on the Anley park course in the only match of the annual club handicap play tournament.

TRUMPH COMES TO MACFARLANE

Respected Willie Has at Last Captured "Met" Open.

By Brian Bell.
NEW YORK, July 30.—(AP)—MacFarlane, who looks like a college professor instead of a golf professional, has added the Metropolitan Open championship to his collection after twice finishing second. The respected Willie was runner-up in 1914 and again 10 years later.

MacFarlane, a product of the Aberdeen school of golf, always will be remembered as the man who spotted Bobby Jones four strokes and beat him in nine holes.

Willie had been playing in the open championships of the United States since Robert Tyre Jones, Jr., was a small boy, but when the veteran and the youngster met at Worcester in the 1923 championship, both were right.

MAC PICKED.
MacFarlane led Bobby three strokes after the first round, 74 to 77. He made it three more in the second when he turned in a sparkling 67 against Bobby's great 70.

In the third, the Atlanta got two strokes back with another 70, the pro's 72 and when Willie slipped back to 78 in the final round, Bobby caught him with 74 and they were tied at 291.

An 18-hole play-off was the rule, but after a routine in the morning after the championship proper there was still no decision for they each scored 75.

VERY HOT.
Another round was started in heat as the sun had been equaled in the blue ribbon event of 1914 in the United States. Jones went out in 35 while MacFarlane required 39 strokes for the first nine holes. The great amateur was then and there unofficially conceded the championship.

"No living man can spot Jones four strokes and hope to beat him in nine holes," said the expert.

They were wrong. One man could, MacFarlane not only caught him but passed him, for Bob used up 38 strokes coming home while MacFarlane played the last nine holes in a sensational 33.

WEE CHIPS.
MacFarlane is a great believer in wee chip shots and is a master at playing this delicate stroke. Near the green he sends the ball sailing into the pin. It's a great trick for one who can do it.

MacFarlane, too, is one of the great wits of the game. At Oakland in the 1927 open, when a very much underdoged Jones was playing an indifferent game, Willie hailed him at the last hole of his third round.

"How did it go, Bobby?" the pro asked.

"Terrible," said Jones. "A 79." "Ah, Bobby," was Willie's comeback, "Now you are playing like a pro."

And in their round at Worcester, when Bobby commented on the weather:

"It's 105 in the shade, Willie," the reply was.

"How fortunate we are, Bobby. We don't have to stay in the shade."

Lipton's Yacht Reports 'All Well'

HORTA, ISLAND OF FAYAL, Azores, July 30.—(AP)—Sir Thomas Lipton's racing yacht Shamrock V, which lost contact with her convoy, the steam yacht Erin, in a mist and rain five days ago, was reported to have returned to the island of Pico on Sunday.

All was well aboard.

The Shamrock V, with which Sir Thomas Lipton hopes to achieve his lifelong ambition of capturing the America's cup, left Portland, Eng., on July 19 under convoy of the Erin. She was delayed by stormy weather and anchored that night in the Spithead roadstead. Later she was taken under tow to Cowes and began her trans-Atlantic voyage proper on July 21.

The course was laid for the Azores, where the Erin was to recon. From the Azores the yachtists will head for the United States.

Bainbridge Trims Thomasville Nine

THOMASVILLE, Ga., July 30.—The Bainbridge team in the Six-Country league won today a 6-1 score and tightened their grasp on first place in the percentage column. Stapleton, against Perry and lost a 1-0 contest, was in the bottom berth and held Thomasville to three hits, two of which came in the ninth inning, combined with a sacrifice, to net the lone Thomasville run.

Thomasville made five errors and the visitors touched Veale for 11 hits.

Austell Nine Wins From Ben Hill

AUSTELL, Ga., July 30.—Austell defeated Ben Hill Saturday, 6 to 4, in a game interrupted by rain in the last half of the sixth inning. Ransome pitched an excellent game for Austell, striking out four and giving up five hits in six innings. Casey, former Havville pitcher, held the Austell hitters well in check except in the fourth inning when they plastered his offering for four hits and five runs. In addition to Ransome, who pitched the game for Austell, were Davis, who accepted seven chances at second base in six innings, and Robinson, who threw out every runner who attempted to steal on him, four in all. For Ben Hill, Waits in center field did some good work.

Jockey Succumbs To Bad Injuries

SAN DIEGO, Cal., July 30.—(AP) Robert Bertsch, 17-year-old Twin Falls (Idaho) jockey, died late last night from injuries received in a spill at Agua Caliente race track yesterday afternoon.

Bertsch was riding G. Peltor's Elito. The horse stumbled and went down on the last turn, throwing the rider in the path of bunched horses.

The jockey's mother witnessed the accident.

SHIKAT WINS NEW ORLEANS

NEW ORLEANS, July 30.—(AP) Richard Shikat, until recently regarded in some states as the world's champion wrestler, tonight defeated Kolo Kwariin, Russian, by taking two out of three falls in a bout between the two.

Night Auto Races Set for Daytona

DAYTONA BEACH, Fla., July 30.—(AP)—Night automobile racing on the ocean speedway here is to be inaugurated next Monday under plans announced today by a local racing committee.

Races are to be run over a half-mile track, the speedway, the promenade and marked off by illuminated barrels.

The events as scheduled will be three five-mile preliminaries and a 10-mile free-for-all final.

Obstacle races by drivers in open stock cars are to be feature attractions.

Committee members announced that a program of successful other night races would be held on August 21 and Labor Day.

Entries in the Monday night event are expected from Jacksonville, Deland, Palm Beach, Miami, Tampa, Palatka, Gainesville, St. Augustine and Daytona Beach.

High prizes are to be posted for each race.
